Monarch's Life Sustained by Oxygen, but Chance of Recovery Is Regarded as Very Slight—Nation In Prayer.

LONDON, May 6.—The following official bulletin was issued at 6:30 this evening:

(Sgd.) LAKING, REID, POWELL, DAWSON, THOMPSON.

LONDON, May 6.—King Edward is believed to be dying. Double pneumonia is reported to have developed, and there is little hope that he will survive.

Oxygen is being administered. The heart action is also affected.

Preparations were made shortly beofre 6 o'clock this evening for an operation to relieve the muscle contraction.

The call of the Archbishop of Canterbury and his laconic words as he left, pronounced in a sad tone and with a shake of the head, have served to increase the apprehension of the people. All the Archbishop would say was:

"Very bad—very bad!"

The Archbishop was accompanied to the palace by Lord Suffield and Colonel Seely. They were admitted to the sick room for a few minutes. They found a physician in constant attendance upon the royal patient. As they left the palace they were greatly depressed.

King No Better, Says Secretary.

Shortly after that Lord Knollys, the King's secretary, was seen. He added to the gravity of the situation by making this statement:

"I am sorry, but it is impossible to say that the King is better. I am very anxious. There has been no indication of improvement."

London is shocked at the sad news. The streets are crowded with men and women with grave faces. There is only one question asked:

"Have you heard any news?"

The newspaper bulletins are besieged. The crowds stand patiently for hours awaiting the next bulletin, following the one issued in the morning, in which the five eminent doctors said:

His Majesty's condition gives rise to grave anxiety."

Prayers Offered by Nation.

Special church services have begun, at which prayers are offered for the restoration of the King to health. The whole nation will add their voices to the petition.

Every precaution is being taken to guard against a financial panic in the event that the King's illness terminates fatally.

The leading banks here this afternoon advised their foreign correspondents that fear of panic is groundless, as adequate measures to protect the markets have been taken.

It was learned this afternoon from responsible sources that important political developments have already been planned for in connection with the return of Premier Asquith, who is scheduled to be in London by Monday.

Whatever might happen to the King, the veto struggle between the Commons and the Lords will be deferred until the next session of Parliament.

Meanwhile the Commons will pass with little delay the practically uncontested budget for the current year, the opposition co-operating to get the indispensable business disposed of in order to enable Parliament to be prorogued in the middle of July.

The Archbishop of Canterbury late to-day telegraphed the following message to every bishop in England and Wales:

"The prayers of the church and the people of England are desired in behalf of His Majesty, King Edward, in his grave illness."

The departure of the Princess of Wales from Buckingham this evening was the occasion of a pathetic spectacle. As her carriage drove slowly through the palace gates on the way to Marlborough House, the anxious crowds [illegible] at the Princess held to her face a handkerchief. Her eyes were [illegible] her features bore unmistakable traces of weeping. [illegible] the crowd saluted her, the men baring their heads as the car- [illegible] through the lines of men and women.

1000 ARE KILLED, CITIES ARE RAZED BY EARTHQUAKE

PORT LIMON, Costa Rica, May 6.—For three days Central America has been shaken by violent earthquakes. The shock continued to-day, but with diminished force. For the seventh time in its history Cartago, former capital of Costa Rica, lies in ruins.

Other cities have been destroyed. Careful estimates based on the latest reports received here to-day give the following as the extent of the disaster:

Dead, 1,000; injured, 4,500, homeless, 15,000; towns destroyed or partially wrecked, 4.

Four hundred bodies have been recovered and seven looters shot.

Turrialba, a town eight miles to the east of Cartago, and Orosi, twenty miles to the southward, are both reported to have met the fate of the larger city.

The volcanoes Turrialba and Irasu, already partially or wholly in eruption, give signs of a severe outbreak. The entire mountain of the central and northern sections of Costa Rica is in terror.

The railroad running from here to the north, with spurs to Cartago and San Jose, is tied up. It is believed that the line has been wrecked in many places.

All wires are down. One of the richest districts in the country lies desolated, the wreckage of its houses covering hundreds of dead.

Though Cartago, according to the fullest reports available, bore the brunt of the shock, the earthquake affected a wide area, fully two hundred miles in length and extending into Nicaragua. The town along the San Juan river near the boundary between Costa Rica and Nicaragua have all felt the shocks severely, according to dispatches from Greytown, at the Nicaraguan territory arriving there brought news of damage done to San Carlos, Castillo Viejo and Ochoa. Throughout the valley, the shocks have played havoc, and in at least one place the course of the river has been changed.

Relief expeditions were to-day sent out from San Jose. The distance from the capital to the destroyed town is but fifteen miles, but progress between them is slow. The electric lighting plant has been wiped out and the water system destroyed. Scarcely a house is standing. A medical corps has been whipped together and temporary hospitals and ambulance service established. Every available vehicle has been impressed to carry the injured to San Jose.

Americans are the leaders in the work of rescuing victims, clearing off debris and succoring as far as possible the effects of the earthquake.

COMET BALLOON FIRED ON

EAST HADDAM, Ct., May 6.—The balloon Massachusetts, bearing a party of astronomers, was fired on early to-day when three miles north of Manchester, according to reports of the members of the party which landed here to-day.

The flight was taken principally for the observation of Halley's comet. In the balloon were Professor David Todd, Mrs. Todd and Charles J. Glidden.

The party said that the astronomical results of the flight were highly satisfactory.

The balloon started from Pittsfield, Mass., at 2:15 a. m., and landed four hours later in a village eighty miles away. The balloon reached an altitude of 7,000 feet.

MELLEN BILL IS ATTACKED BY MR. WHITE

Representative White of Brookline to-day gave out the following statement in which he attacks Charles S. Mellen's bill providing for the legalization of the $121,000,000 stock of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. The bill has already been admitted by the Senate Committee on Rules. Representative White was the leading opponent of the merger and the holding company proposition in the Legislature. Here is Mr. White's statement:

"The Mellen bill to legalize the seventy odd millions of illegal New Haven stock, is an acknowledgment on the part of the offending company of its transgression of Massachusetts law as outlined by the Attorney-General.

"The bill is the result of the report of the bank commissioners, tax commissioner and Railroad Commission recommending the financial investigation of the assets of this huge monopoly. But the bill is transparent to a remarkable degree.

"It says in plain English, 'Validate the illegal stock and investigate afterwards.'

"I submit that no validation whatsoever should be made until after investigation. What is the use of an investigation if validation is given first? In the same breath we are asked to place the guarantee of this road on the preferred stock of the holding device, by His Excellency the Governor.

"Here is a pretty picture, piecing the indorsement on stock to be sold to the public —and the indorser asking the Legislature to legalize its own stock.

"I maintain: 1—No legislation should be enacted requiring the New Haven to indorse, buy, build or guarantee anything until its own stock is made legal after financial investigation.

"2—The State ought not to proceed upon any further entanglements or alliances with this offending corporation until two things are clear: (a) The final attitude of the United States regarding its New Haven suit, (b) A complete accounting of the vast New Haven assets and debts, including that part of the monopoly of steamboats as well as trolleys, and all leased lines, subsidiary trusts and subsidiary companies and associations.

"Electrification, tunnel and attempts to regain the Berkshire or other trolleys ordered given up by the Supreme Court, involving huge expenses, should not be considered until these fundamental conditions are laid as a foundation."

CHILDREN IN FIRE SAVED BY PATROLMEN

By breaking down the door and crawling on their hands and knees through the smoke-filled corridors of a two and a half-story wooden dwelling at No. 81 Broadway, Chelsea, Patrolmen David J. Hickey and William Mosely early to-day rescued two children of Mr. and Mrs. John Donkosky, who were partly overcome while asleep in the attic rooms.

The children were seven and ten. The policemen returned to the building and aroused the other sleeping occupants, who managed to reach the street in safety.

The basement floor of the house was occupied by the family of Joseph Macalsky, the first floor by Michael Ankofsky and family and the second floor by John Donkosky and family. The fire started in the roof and was discovered by Joseph McCleary, who is employed as a night worker in a Chelsea restaurant. The damage is about $700.

AUTO ENGINE KILLS THREE.

MACON, Ga., May 6.—The explosion of a tire on an automobile engine speeding to a fire resulted in the deaths here to-day of Frances Lee Roberts, C. A. MacIlray and J. E. Buffington. Three others were injured.

'DAKOTA DAN' ANALYZES HIS FRESNO RIVAL

"Dakota Dan" Russell to-day began to make preparations to move to Melrose. He expects to remain at the sanitarium in Lexington, where he went immediately after the adverse decision to his claim to half the $500,000 left by Daniel Russell but a few days longer.

To-day he talked of William C. Russell whom he saw yesterday in the court room in Cambridge for the first time since the trial was closed. Justice Sheldon was asked by Attorneys Nasso and Proctor to hear the arguments for a new trial at the close of the present sitting of the Supreme Court, while Attorney Nelson A. Sheldon opposed it. The Justice said he thought the argument could hardly be reached at this time.

"Dakota Dan" saw both William C. Russell and "Fresno Dan" in court. To-day he said:

"You don't know how it feels to see your own brother sitting near you and not being allowed to call him 'brother.' I am not blaming anyone for that, but the truth will be known sooner or later.

"I also saw the man they call Daniel Blake Russell. I don't see how anyone could connect that man with my family. There is nothing in his features that resembles my father. Physically he is of about the same build that I was when I left home, but in my case pure air and outdoor exercises have made me what I am today. While you call this man 'Brother' and 'Dennis,' but I feel sure that in his heart he knows I am his brother."

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, May 6.—Players and fans didn't know what to make of the bright, sunshiny weather that was served up to them to-day. It was by far the best baseball day of the year.

There was a stampede to the grounds by the faithful who had been denied the privilege of seeing a game for three whole days. Everybody was happy and peanuts sold well.

It was the first appearance here this year of the New York Americans, who have many old Boston players on their roster. Lou Criger was quickly recognized by the fans. So was Harry Wolter, who has been doing such good work for the Yanks. Hal Chase, the great first baseman and captain of the New Yorks; Frank Laporte, Jack Knight and other old favorites looked familiar.

The Red Sox were in good condition for the battle. They are home for a long stay and their work in the coming games will have much to do with the final standing of the club. Both clubs practiced with gingers, after which the fans settled back in their seats ready to see an exciting game.

"We will win to-day and to-morrow," declared Lake, "and start for St. Louis in good shape for the Western clubs."

"You've got another guess on the first part of your remark," said Manager Dahlen. "You've got all that's coming to you in this series."

KING EDWARD'S ILLNESS SURPRISE TO THE WORLD

Royal Patient's Condition Favorable Up to Midnight, but He Grew Rapidly Worse After Daybreak.

LONDON, May 6.—The illness of King Edward took a turn to-day that filled his physicians with "grave anxiety." His disease was generally believed to have taken the form of pneumonia.

Oxygen was taken to the palace. An attack of this character at his age and with his enfeebled constitution, it was conceded, might prove fatal very quickly.

London was greatly alarmed. The change in the form of the bulletin issued from that of last night intensified the fright of the people. In the first bulletin issued the condition of His Majesty was described as having caused the doctors "some anxiety." But to-day the physicians said that his condition "gives rise to grave anxiety."

LARKING, REID, POWELL, DAWSON, THOMAS.

This bulletin was given out early in the day. It was announced that the next bulletin would be given out at 5 p. m.

The King's condition in the earlier part of the night it was learned, was quite satisfactory. When he awoke it was found that his condition was much worse. He was in much less cheerful mood and the doctors for the first time missed that cheerful mood that had always characterized him in times of suffering.

Heart Trouble Feared.

It was feared that heart failure might set in, and the doctors took every known precaution to prevent it.

Attempts made to get information from the physicians as they left or arrived by auto failed, but it was gathered from another source that champagne was resorted to to sustain the invalid. Following this it showed a slight improvement.

Lord Knollys, secretary to the King, today received scores of telegrams and cablegrams from all over the world, asking for definite information regarding the King, one of the most solicitous callers at Buckingham was Sir Ernest Cassel, one of the King's closest friends, who returned yesterday from abroad. He arrived soon after the Duke and Duchess of York.

Every afternoon paper in England to-day issued extra editions. The populace crowded about the bulletin boards and grabbed up the papers as fast as they could be printed.

In June, 1902, he was operated on for peritynphilitis. Since then he has been much subject to colds and sore throats, and the wretched weather at Biarritz during his seven weeks' stay there and adverse weather conditions in England since his return on April 27 were the causes of this attack of throat trouble.

Constitution Weakened.

In the last year, too, his constitution has lost much of its vigor, though formerly it would have pulled him through a crisis such as the present. On his return to London he plunged into his usual round of activities, in spite of bad physical condition and in disregard of the physicians' orders.

As the day wore on reassuring information from the sickroom was awaited in vain. The newspaper men were constantly about the palace grounds detailed to what is technically known as the "death watch." The police and the guardsmen at the palace refused to allow them to remain in one place, however.

Consternation ruled in the clubs, especially in the political centres.

It was regarded semi-officially that Premier Asquith had been recalled post haste from Spain, where he was one of a party on tour. The omission of his name from those sailing for England on the admiralty yacht Enchantress was declared to indicate that he had left overland and would be in London by to-morrow morning at the latest.

King Edward's illness could not have come at a worse time. With the political turmoil of the last few months not yet passed and the country on the verge of a revolutionary fight over the rights of the House of Lords, the situation is one of confusion and much bitterness.

The recognition of the King at this juncture was a hard blow to the Lords, for in the struggle since the rejection of the budget by the upper House he had thrown his influence consistently with the nobles.

For the time being, at least, London's social season is stopped, and plans have been called off or held in abeyance.

Best Physicians in Europe.

Probably no more eminent physicians in all Europe could be found than the five in the King's bedside to-day. Sir Francis Laking, physician in ordinary and Surgeon Apothecary to the King and Prince of Wales, has been decorated several times. He was created a knight in 1895, and became baronet in 1902, receiving the Cross of the Royal Victorian order in 1905. He holds the grand cross of the Immaculate Conception given by the King of Portugal in 1902; the grand cross of the Danish Dannebrog and is a commander of the Legion of Honor.

Sir Francis is a consulting physician to the Queen Victoria Hospital for Children.

Sir James Reid is the King's physician in ordinary. He was knighted in 1895, and in 1897, two years before having been made knight commander of the Bath. He was created a maid of honor to Queen Victoria and daughter of the Rev. Baron Stockmar. Sir James was resident physician to Queen Victoria from 1881 to 1901.

Sir Richard Douglas Powell, created baronet in 1902, was in 1905 president of the Royal College of Physicians. He has attended the King since 1901. He was physician extraordinary to Queen Victoria.

Dr. Bertrand Dawson has been physician extraordinary to the King since 1907.

Dr. St. Clair Thomson is a throat specialist, being physician for diseases of the throat at King's College Hospital.

Continuous Procession to Palace.

This afternoon it was unofficially announced at Buckingham that the King's condition had undergone no material change since morning. A continuous stream of inquirers—diplomatists, aristocrats and the nation's foremost notables—poured into the palace grounds all day long. A few of them were received by the Prince of Wales, but the great majority were treated in a mere perfunctory manner by members of the King's suite.

King Edward is in his sixty-ninth year, and for the past six months has been in an enfeebled condition and constantly under the doctor's care.

The first intimation that anything was amiss was the failure of the King to meet the Queen on her return from the Continent. It has been the King's invariable rule to be present on the Queen's arrival from any out of town journey, and his absence was made the subject of general comment immediately it was noted.

The Queen hurried to the palace and soon afterward the public learned by an official announcement that the King had been ill for two days. The fact that his illness had been thus concealed from public knowledge increased the alarm when once it became generally known.

Similar Attack Before.

The King suffered from a similar attack at Biarritz, owing to the inclement weather and cold winds, but it was supposed that he had completely recovered, especially as he attended the opera at Covent Garden within three hours of his arrival in London from Biarritz last Wednesday.

On Thursday the King had a busy day. He gave an audience to Lord Kitchener and Premier Asquith, and visited the Royal Academy. On Friday also he gave several audiences and entertained Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Gladstone at a farewell luncheon on their departure for South Africa, and visited the Horse Show in the evening.

This social activity tended to reassure the public mind, but it was noticed that while his majesty was viewing the pictures at the Royal Academy he looked pale and fatigued, and lacked his customary zest and sprightliness, and the members of his entourage feared that this might betoken a return of the throat and chest trouble.

The King spent the week-end at Sandringham with the object of combating the threatened attack, and returned apparently better, but the sudden changes in the weather this week were very trying, and finally compelled him to keep indoors. He still attended to State business, however, and granted audiences, including among others to Tsgovey was audience to Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, and Lord Roberts. Wednesday he entertained Grand Duke Michael at luncheon.

All the papers this morning make editorial reference to the King's illness. The Times says that the feelings of universal regret and sympathy which the news of the King's indisposition has taken "must inevitably be intensified by the reflection that we are entering upon a constitutional crisis of exceptional gravity."

The Daily Mail says: "No sovereign was ever more universally and affectionately by his people as King Edward VII. Nothing could be more dispiriting than then news of his illness at this most critical moment in the affairs of state when his moderating influence and supreme tact and experience are so sorely required."

The Daily Express says: "Everything else sinks into insignificance beside this emergency. Controversy ceases, politics disappear. The King's subjects are united in fervent prayer for his early and complete recovery. God save the King."

MRS. GODFREY, WHO MAY BE BRIDE OF YOUNG JAY GOULD

CHANCELLOR DAY HERE FOR DINNER

Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University arrived in Boston to-day to attend the annual dinner of the Syracuse graduates of Boston and New England at the Hotel Somerset. He will be the chief speaker at the dinner. Rev. Dr. Wilbur Harmon Van Allen, '90, rector of the Church of the Advent, will officiate as toastmaster. Dr. Steele, Dr. Huntington, president of Boston University and Professor Judson B. Colt of Boston University will also speak. The first president of Syracuse University was the Rev. Dr. Daniel Steele, now living in Milton.

JAY GOULD IS REPORTED TO BE ENGAGED

Jay Gould, second son of George J. Gould, and beautiful Mrs. Beatrice Van Brunner Godfrey of Boston, divorced wife of Arthur W. Godfrey, son of the wealthy Boston lumberman, are soon to be married, according to a cable received here to-day from Paris. The announcement comes as a great surprise to Boston and New York social and financial circles.

The Godfrey divorce case caused the greatest interest in this city. Mrs. Godfrey blamed her father-in-law with causing all the trouble between her and her young husband and positively denied all allegations of young Godfrey.

She filed a cross-libel and charged her husband with cruel and abusive treatment. She also brought suit late in the Fall of 1908 against Lester M. Godfrey for $50,000, charging him with alienating the affections of her husband. This action was subsequently dropped.

Since that time Mrs. Godfrey has lived much in Paris. She received her musical education at the New England Conservatory of Music and it was while she was here that she and young Godfrey met and became engaged. They slipped away to Chicago where they were married.

She was born in Atlanta, Ga., and is a strikingly beautiful woman of the pronounced blonde type. When she was a young girl her parents removed to Davenport, Ia. She studied in Paris and then was sent here to complete her musical education.

GOULDS DECLARE ABSURD REPORT OF ENGAGEMENT

NEW YORK, May 6.—Jay Gould and his father, George J. Gould, through their private secretaries, to-day denied a dispatch from Paris to the effect that Jay was engaged to wed Miss Beatrice Godfrey Van Brunner, an American girl who has been attending school in Berlin. Both the Goulds declared that the report was absurd.

CRANE ASSURES TAFT RAILROAD BILL WILL PASS

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Senator Elkins of West Virginia, who has charge of the railroad bill in the Senate, accompanied by Senator Crane of Massachusetts, today assured the President that the Republicans have a sufficient majority to pass the bill.

Somewhat weary from a continuous ride of 20 hours by rail, but not too tired to be exceedingly hot under the collar at the Republican insurgents, who have interfered with the legislation which he desires to have enacted at this session of Congress, President Taft returned to Washington today to take up the battle in behalf of his pet measure, the railroad bill.

At 6:30 o'clock, when his train arrived here, he brought to a close his trip of 2,200 miles throughout the Middle West, in which he had visited Buffalo, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and St. Louis. As a political move the experts in Washington do not regard the result of President Taft's trip as a great success. While he has done away the administration's foes in Congress has had full swing, and the Republican leaders do not believe that the visit to the West has gained enough to counterbalance what has been lost here.

The receptions throughout the journey were not over enthusiastic and what politicians had hoped to be gained for the party, more strength in the coming congressional campaign, was not brought about.

FIREMAN DARES DEATH TO SAVE OTHERS IN PERIL

To avoid a collision with a crowded electric car and a coal wagon that had "boxed" him, Driver J. D. Mitchell of Ladder 4, Roxbury, swung his ladder truck between two elevated posts at Washington and Lenox streets. One horse was so badly injured that he had to be shot and several ladders, the truck pole and considerable of the harness was wrecked.

"Baby," the pet horse of the department and twice a blue ribbon winner in workhorse parades, with the medal at his neck when he met his death, was the victim. One of his forward legs was broken and he was injured internally.

The men on the ladder struck held to their places and every one received a bad shaking up.

Witnesses of the accident say that Mitchell was in no way to blame. It was a case of colliding with the car or coal wagon, or hitting the pole and taking a chance of being killed himself. He chose the latter.

There was probably not a member of the company with dry eyes as the traces were cut, for the pride of the "hitch" would never answer another alarm. A blue ribbon horse, with the medal fastened to his harness and his ribbon hanging in Captain McManus' office, he had seen his last service.

REAR ADMIRAL M'CALLA DEAD IN CALIFORNIA

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., May 6.—Rear Admiral B. H. McCalla, U. S. N., died at 4 o'clock this morning of apoplexy.

Admiral McCalla was born in Camden, N. J., June 19, 1844. He was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1861 and served there four years.

In 1887 McCalla was ordered to the European station, in command of the steam sloop Enterprise. In 1890 an enlisted man, thoroughly drunk, was brought to the mast and commanded by the commander, and in his rage turned upon McCalla and insulted him with oaths and vile language. The latter, who possessed a hot and almost ungovernable temper, drew his sword and in a moment of passion struck the sailor.

Dismissed from the Navy.

McCalla was denounced from one end of America to the other for this flagrant violation of the rules of the navy, and was court-martialed and dismissed from the navy. In view of his record, the sentence was modified to three years' suspension and a heavy loss of numbers, and this term was afterward cut in halves. He was promoted to a captaincy on August 10, 1898, and on March 13, 1903, President McKinley granted him a full pardon, with restoration of all his forfeited numbers.

The Spanish war gave him his chance. Before hostilities began he was stationed at Key West, and before the war was over the Jackies had almost forgotten the name of his ship, which was as often called the "McCalla" as the "Marblehead," while down in Cuban waters she came to be referred to almost exclusively as "The Pub of Blood." That was because McCalla had taught his men to shoot as never men in the United States navy had been taught before. Day in and day out they were shooting at marks, and when he reported for war duty they boasted that they could hit a fly a mile away.

Seized Guantanamo Bay.

McCalla seized Guantanamo Bay with the Marblehead and held it for the regiment of marines under Huntington. This gave a coaling place, and thus was the salvation of the navy. The camp was named for him, and he was recognized, even by his superiors, as boss of those waters. When he got control of the situation he kept the station healthy and active every minute, and kept the Spaniards in hot water by his continued presentation of shot and shell.

ROOSEVELT IS WORRIED OVER KING'S ILLNESS

CHRISTIANIA, May 6.—Theodore Roosevelt to-day showed keen interest in the position of King Edward. Inquiries minutely on arising he asked for the latest news from London, and every development was carried to him as fast as word was received, even at the ceremonies this afternoon, when Mr. Roosevelt received a decree of Doctor of Laws from the University.

Queen Maud committed to Mrs. Roosevelt that she was shocked over her father's condition. It is not yet known whether the illness of King Edward will have any effect on the visit of Mr. Roosevelt to London, but it is feared that if the King's condition grows more serious Roosevelt will be compelled to abandon his official calls in England.

Mr. Roosevelt to-day, besides being treated by a throat specialist, gave much time to rest, sight-seeing and the dictation of letters. The event of the day, however, was the bestowal of the degree by the University. The ceremonies were largely in the hands of the Nobel committee. He was accompanied to the university by King Haakon.

King Haakon himself to-day arranged for the departure of the Roosevelt party for Stockholm.

MAYOR'S ACT HOLDS WHOLE CITY "DRY"

Because Mayor Woods has withheld his approval of the action of the Aldermen in granting liquor licenses to the druggists of that city, Somerville is "dry" totally, and not even a physician's prescription is a warrant for the sale of liquor. The Mayor summoned the druggists to appear at his office, and talked to them about the observance of the law. He told them that he had not decided whether to veto the order of the Aldermen or not. If the Mayor refuses to sign, the druggists will appeal to the Aldermen to pass the order over his veto, as they did in the instance of the pony expressmen.

CONFIRM ALLEN AS ART COMMISSIONER

The Civil Service Commission today confirmed the appointment of Thomas Allen as art commissioner. Allen was recommended by the trustees of the Museum of Fine Arts for this position, which carries a salary. The commission also forwarded communication to the Mayor sending additional information about the record of Dr. Francis X. Maloney, who has been named as a member of the Boston Park Commission. There was some desire to know by whom the physician is endorsed for the position. Mayor Fitzgerald forwarded the letter to Dr. Maloney for a reply. The commission has about ten days more in which to act upon his appointment.

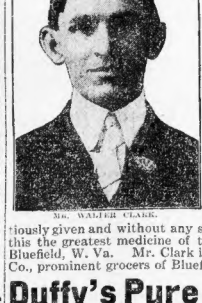
BIG PACKING HOUSE AGENT KILLS SELF

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., May 6.—Henry G. Fifield, widely known in New England through his position as agent for the Swift Packing Company, killed himself in his home here by shooting. A nervous trouble compelled him to give up his business cares a few weeks ago. He has been in Brattleboro for two years, previous to which he was in Manchester, N. H., for seven years, and in Lynn, Mass., for four years. He leaves a wife, son and daughter.

Greatest Medicine of the Age



MR. WALTER CLARK.

Mr. Walter Clark of Bluefield, W. Va., was laid up with lung trouble, unable to work for two months. He tried numerous medicines without results until he took Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It completely cured him and now he is in perfect health.

"Having been afflicted with a serious case of lung trouble and used many remedies without result—in fact, I was unable to do any work whatever for two months—Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey was recommended, and I commenced taking the same. I desire to state that I am entirely cured, having been pronounced so by my physician.

"This testimonial is conscientiously given and without any solicitation whatsoever. I consider this the greatest medicine of the present age."—Walter Clark, Bluefield, W. Va. Mr. Clark is a member of the firm of Clark & Co., prominent grocers of Bluefield.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is a wonderful remedy in the treatment and cure of all diseases of the lungs, throat and stomach and for all weakening and wasting conditions. It is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic. When taken at mealtime it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to a healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the system its full proportion of nourishment. This action upon the digestive process is of great importance, as it brings to all the tissues and organs of the body the nutriment necessary to their sustenance and indirectly to the whole system strength and vigor. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

If in need of advice write Medical Department, The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Rochester, New York, stating your case fully. Our doctors will send you advice free, together with a valuable illustrated medical booklet, containing rare common sense rules for health, which you cannot afford to be without, and some of the many thousands of gratifying letters received from men and women in all walks of life, both old and young, who have been cured and benefited by the use of this great medicine and who continue to enjoy good health. Sold by druggists, grocers and dealers or direct $1.00 a large bottle.

OMET IS NOW VERY BRILLIANT

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 6.—In addition to ideal weather conditions affording a view of Halley's comet better than has been obtained by the naked eye since its present advent, early morning spectators on the Pacific coast recorded a stellar treat. With the comet as the chief feature of the spectacle, its added attraction was presented in proximity to the moon and the planet Mars.

When the comet first appeared, a shaft of light appeared in the heavens resembling a searchlight. This flare grew longer, until the comet appeared, the whole presenting the appearance of rising tail foremost.

SENATORS GIVE WIDOW $1,100

WASHINGTON, May 6.—During the Civil War Mrs. Y. C. Farris of Lancaster, Ky., was the Florence Nightingale of the hospitals of the Union army in that section of the war belt. In that time Mrs. Farris was independent in means and served without pay. Now, in her old age, she has fallen upon hard times.

She had a claim before the Court of Claims for $1,000. It was disallowed on a technicality and Senator Bradley brought it before the Senate committee. It was decided there that it was not possible legally for the government to pay the money, but Senator Smoot was so impressed by the heroism of Mrs. Farris that he got down his purse for $100 and started our the subscription list. In less than half an hour he had all the thousand. The contributors being Senators Guggenheim, Smoot, Bradley, Carter, William Alden Smith, Du Pont, Briggs, Bulkeley, Bourne and Oliver. Senator Depew heard of the case and invited us on getting in which his $100, so Mrs. Farris will receive $1,100.

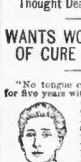
TERRIBLE CASE OF ECZEMA CURED

Body and Face Covered with Itching, Painful Eruption—5 Years of Suffering Beyond Description—Thought Death was Near.

WANTS WORLD TO KNOW OF CURE BY CUTICURA



"No tongue can tell how I suffered for five years with itching and bleeding eczema, until I was cured by the Cuticura Remedies, and I am so grateful I want the world to know. For what helped me will help others. My body and face were covered with sores. One day it would seem to be better, and then break out again with the most terrible pain and itching. I have been sick several times, but never in my life did I experience such awful suffering as with this eczema. I had made up my mind that death was near at hand, and I longed for that time when I would be at rest. I had tried many different doctors and medicines without success, and my mother brought me the Cuticura Remedies, insisting that I try them. I began to feel better after the first bath with Cuticura Soap, and one application of Cuticura Ointment.

"I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, and have taken four bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, and consider myself well. This was nine years ago and I have had no return of the trouble since. Any person having any doubt about this wonderful cure by the Cuticura Remedies can write to me at Andrew, Mrs. Alvie Etson, 93 Inn Road, Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 16, 1909."

The suffering which Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have alleviated among skin-tortured, disfigured infants and children, and the comfort they have afforded worn-out and worried parents have led to their adoption in countless homes as a priceless treatment for the skin. Eczema, rashes, and every form of itching, burning, scaly humor are speedily cured by Cuticura, in the majority of cases, when all else fails.

Cuticura Soap (25c.), Ointment (50c.), Resolvent (50c.), and Chocolate Coated Pills (25c.), are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 137 Columbus Av., Boston.

GREAT DEMAND FOR MALE HELP

The volume of business at the State free employment office in Boston, according to Superintendent Sears, has increased 25 per cent. during the past month, as compared with April, 1909. As the facilities of the office for furnishing high grade help become more widely known the demand for skilled help increases. The demand for female help has remained about the same, with less positions reported filled, which is accounted for by the scarcity of female help for factory and housework.

The demand for male help has increased more than 60 per cent, with a corresponding increase in the number of positions filled. A year ago the demand for female help and the positions reported filled were in excess of the males, whereas this year the demand for male help exceeds that of the female by nearly 60 per cent. and in the positions reported filled it is about the same percentage.

HUSBAND 2 WANTED NO. 1'S PROPERTY

Mrs. Ellen Smiley of Crescent street, Waltham, testified in the East Cambridge divorce court that because she failed to turn over to her husband $1000 which had been left to her by her first husband she had been assaulted by her second husband, and was granted a divorce from Fred J. Smiley.

MOTHER SAVES TWO CHILDREN

Mrs. Michael Houlihan and her two children, David, aged eight, and Mary, aged four, had a narrow escape from suffocation early to-day in a fire that destroyed the kitchen of their home at No. 157 Cabot street, Roxbury.

The Houlihan family occupy the lower tenement of the two-story frame building, and just after Mr. Houlihan had left in the early morning for his work, the mother smelled smoke.

Hurriedly entering the kitchen she found it ablaze and was driven back into the adjoining dining room by the smoke.

Her first thought was for her sleeping children, and she hurried to their bedroom and carried them both to the street, but by this time the house was filled with smoke.

Outside the children were found to be unconscious.

It was over an hour before they recovered at the home of a neighbor.

Mrs. Alice Degan, who occupies the second floor of the dwelling, aroused by the shouts of Mrs. Houlihan, and the barking of her pet dog made her way down stairs through the blinding smoke and reached the sidewalk almost overcome.

The damage by the fire was slight, the blaze being confined to the kitchen. Rats and matches are believed to have caused the fire.

URGE NEED OF PLAYGROUNDS

That it is cheaper to build playgrounds than jails is one of the chief theories of General George W. Wingate of New York, who outlined his idea in a speech at the Boston City Club as the guest of honor at the dinner and conference of those interested in the development of playgrounds here and the Boston-1915 school-boy games.

Speaking of the results attained by the New York playground system, General Wingate said that before the New York Public School Athletic League was started, the boys were 20 to 30 per cent. below standard in physique, with little idea of honor or square dealing and school pride.

Now the pupils of all schools in New York are stronger physically, mentally and morally.

Formerly streets were so crowded that only "grave" space was offered each child as a playground, and the children of the tenements ran out only into a miserable physical development, but had lost all knowledge of how to play. These evils have been corrected by the new system.

During a discussion of the matter Mayor Fitzgerald stated he was heartily in favor of a plan to have a league in Boston, and said he would do all in his power to forward a movement of this kind or to all others in the work.

"While there are many playgrounds in Boston," said the Mayor, "there cannot be too many, and these, together with a league of the kind in question, would be of the greatest advantage to the children, both boys and girls, in our public schools."

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ON MILK NAMED

The Legislative Committee of seven members to investigate the milk situation in the State was appointed today. A majority of the committee, it is said, is in sympathy with the producers, in their clash with the Boston contractors.

The following were appointed on the committee: Senators Helen M. Ingersoll, George Holden Tinkham of Boston and John F. Mealey of Lancaster; Representatives Cheshire A. Warren of Chelsea, Charles M. Gardner of Westfield, William R. Avery of Beaumont and James W. Bosh of Cambridge. The committee consists of one Democrat, Senator Mealey, and six Republicans.

Senator Ingersoll said the committee will get down to business as early as possible.

Representative Gardner is master of the State Grange, an organization which yesterday adopted resolutions favoring the producers.

The committee is appointed in accordance with an order of Senator Mealey and has full powers of court to investigate the milk situation, and authority to travel over the State. The committee is to report to the Legislature not later than May 24.

NO APPETITE STRENGTH OR AMBITION

A Pennsylvania Woman Whose Health Did Not Return After Childbirth Tells How She Was Cured.

As a woman's health is dependent upon the condition of the blood, every mother, who fails to regain her strength after childbirth, should hasten her return to health and save herself from years of unnecessary suffering, by giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a thorough trial. This pure, new blood, which the pills make, strengthens the weakened system until health is restored.

Mrs. Joseph A. Mong, whose address is Sugar Creek, R. F. D., Franklin, Pa., says:

"I suffered for ten months after the birth of one of my children and was in a terribly weak and run-down condition. I had no appetite, my stomach was weak and I had no ambition to work. My head would distress me so that I felt as though my stomach was on fire. I suffered from nausea, had sick headaches and would be dizzy and faint. I had severe pains in the small of my back and around my heart upon the slightest exertion, like going upstairs or doing heavy housework. I was under a doctor's care, and he said that my heart would skip beats. He gave me treatment but it did not help me. I also suffered from female weakness at the time.

"My sister-in-law, who had taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with good results, advised me to try them. I experienced relief from the first box. My appetite returned, my stomach trouble left me and I was soon restored to health."

As most of the diseases from which women suffer are directly caused by a lack of blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been found unequalled in the treatment of anemia, green sickness, delayed development, lemorrhea and all irregularities arising from impure or watery blood and weak nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain nothing that could injure the most delicate system and are guaranteed to be free from opiates and narcotics.

Every mother should have our booklets, "Plain Talks to Women" and "Care of the Baby," which will be sent free upon postal card request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

ALLEGED SPIES EJECTED FROM UNION MEETING

Following a riot at the Wells Memorial meeting of Machinists Union No. 264, in which two alleged spies were ejected from the hall, the officers of that organization today declared that there is a plot underway by the anti-union employers' associations to break up the men's union, and forestall their demand for higher wages in June 1 next.

Eight hundred men were in attendance at this meeting. Frank Jennings, business agent of the union, discovered the two alleged spies in the extreme rear of the hall. They were taking notes and carefully listening and doing. He immediately demanded that they stand clear of the men was employed by a large Boston concern. The other, immediately afterward, was recognized as a private detective.

Accused of being spies and ordered to leave the hall the men protested very violently. The excited trade unionists immediately swarmed around them and, hustled the men so roughly that they were in danger of being laid out cold. Fortunately much of the way they were hustled to the door of the meeting hall.

At machinists' headquarters today it was said that the presence of these two men in the union meetings undoubtedly was due to the fact that 1,000 machinists of Greater Boston on June 1 are planning to strike unless their demand for higher wages is acceded to by the employers.

NONE SURVIVE EXPLOSION IN ALABAMA MINE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 6.—The grim work of recovering the bodies of the ninety negro miners and forty-five white men entombed in the mine of the Palos Coal & Coke Company by the explosion of yesterday began today. No hope is entertained for the recovery of a single man alive. This is Alabama's worst mine disaster. Following close on the Mulga disaster of April 20, in which forty-three men perished, the new catastrophe has startled the city and the State.

Under the direction of Mine Inspector James Hillhouse, the work of penetrating the mine was begun to-day, after bands of rescuers had been beaten back again and again in all night attempts to enter. Oxygen helmets of the United States Geological Survey were requisitioned and J. J. Rutledge and George F. Rice forced their way in.

One of the most terrible of scenes met them. Torn and mutilated, the bodies of the men were piled in ghastly heaps or strewn along, dismembered through the levels.

All night long a band of haggard women clustered about the mine, struggling to get near the shaft entrance and demanding information of their husbands, fathers, brothers and sweethearts.

Two of the three victims of the explosion found first to-day remain unidentified. They were standing near the entrance, 150 feet away. John Gosday, a mail carrier, was killed while passing.

PROMINENT MEN AT SPALDING FUNERAL

Men distinguished in various walks of life attended the funeral to-day of Senator Thorndike Spalding. The services were held at the house, No. 75 Sparks street, Cambridge, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and Rev. James C. Sharp, classmate and fellow member of the Pi Eta Club of Harvard with the dead Senator, officiated. The pall bearers were Colonel Everett C. Benton, Charles T. Cottrell, President Treadway of the Senate and Albert H. Newman. Delegations attended from the Senate and House of Representatives, from various Masonic bodies, from the Middlesex Court, Citizens' Trade Association of Cambridge and from the various ward and city committees of Cambridge. Burial was in the Mt. Auburn Cemetery.

MME. SEMBRICH IS OFF TO SWITZERLAND

NEW YORK, May 6.—Mme. Marcella Sembrich, who has sung her farewell in opera here, departed yesterday on the George Washington for her home on Lake Geneva, where she said she would enjoy a long rest. "I have had a delightful trip over the United States," she said. "I have seen many, many places I did not know, and while I believe, now I know, your country is wonderful. I have sung in seventy concerts, and I have had success I am content to rest in October for another tour, but it will be a shorter one.

STRANGE BLAZE IN A CAR OF COTTON

Mystery surrounds the origin of a blaze that destroyed a freight car to-day in the yards at the North Station and caused a loss of about $1,000. The car was laden with wool, consigned to the Wood, Derby & Thompson Company, London, and arrived in the yards last night. It had been run off on a siding. The firemen confined the fire to the car in which it started.

MRS. BLAKE QUITS.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Mrs. Lillie Devereaux Blake, re-elected to the presidency of the New York Legislative League at the Waldorf-Astoria, declared this world over her last reign in office. "I am seventy years," she said, "and want to make way for younger women."

WELL, OF ALL THINGS! STORK BUSY IN A ZOO

NEW YORK, May 6.—Three were songs before sunrise in the monkey house of the Bronx zoo to-day. Dr. Raoul Blair, famous physician, hastened to their feats to discover that four lemurs had been born, one each to Mmes. Casablanca, Gaga, Mascar and Ada, who were receiving congratulations. Dr. Blair, having officiated, decided to go right over to the Administration Building and tell Mr. Hornaday all about it.

As he passed the dwelling place of the Mexican peccary on next Keeper Schlosser with glad tidings, he made more carries had that moment entered the world and Dr. Blair must needs assist. With this additional news Dr. Blair once more started off to see Mr. Hornaday.

But no sooner had he neared the wolf dens than Keeper McGraw plucked him forcibly by the sleeve. "Doc," he chanced coyotes born that very moment.

Stepping one ear and pressing the antelope house when Keeper Beyreuther went, spelled it in his other ear that a small Sardinian sheep had just arrived and would Dr. Blair see it?

Once more the hunter of good peace started off to the Administration building. He was flitting by the epidemy, when what do you think happened? Keeper Schlosser told him that Mrs. Sarah Desert was the proud mother of two young beavers, and could the doctor stop a moment? The doctor did.

So when Dr. Blair finally did get to Mr. Hornaday it was found that the zoo was richer by four lemurs, one peccary, two coyotes, one Sardinian sheep and two cancels. Mothers and babies are doing well. And the christening arranged a week ago when three babies were born is going to be a big one.

SENATE BRIBE STORY SHAKES UP ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, May 6.—The unexpected confession of Representative H. J. C. Beckemeyer, corroborating in every detail the confession of Charles A. White that he was paid $1,000 for voting for William Lorimer for United States senator and that he received $900 as his share of the corporation "jackpot," has thrown politics into a turmoil which is without a precedent in this State. Insistent denials of other legislators that the way of Lorimer to the United States Senate was paved with corruption and gold may result in prosecutions for perjury.

The

National Railroad System

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES of railroad directly serve one-half the population of the United States.

LAST year they carried 77,900,000 passengers, representing probably 2,000,000 different individuals or a representative of one in every eight families in the country.

They handled 188,750,000 tons of freight.

They purchased $75,000,000 worth of supplies, steel and advertising, eggs and ties, and a thousand other articles as widely dissimilar. Some were bought from individuals and some from companies with many stockholders and a host of employes.

They paid over $95,277,000 in wages to 135,211 employes.

THERE is probably not a single family in the United States that was not benefited by these activities.

The business of the New York Central Lines is sharply competitive and held only by superior service.

There are over 200,000 stock and bond holders. Their money is devoted to a public service and in dividends and interest they receive little more than savings bank rate.

There may be in the facts and figures here presented a new view point from which to examine some of the so-called "railroad problems" of today.

WHITE SLAVE AGENT DESERTED A FAMILY WHILE WORKING HERE

Harry Levinson, or Levison, the young man who has made such an amazing confession in connection with the white slave traffic in New York to District Attorney Whitman, telling of having recruited some of his victims from Boston, after stealing jewelry from his employer in this city, deserted his wife and three children and disappeared.

The deserted wife, who is now in Boston, has written a letter to District Attorney Whitman urging him to punish her husband as he deserves.

In her letter she told the district attorney how her husband left her with her three little children to battle alone with the world, and that if it were not for friends she would have starved. She was forced to place one of the children in a home for Jewish children, where it now is. Boston police officials who know him say that Levinson is a "no good." When Levinson was in Boston he lived on Lyndeboro street, West End. He was employed as an outside installment-plan jewelry salesman for Louis Sonnabend, No. 15 Elm street.

Arrested on Larceny Charge.

On July 13, 1906, Levinson was arrested in New York and brought back to Boston by Inspectors Wolf and Patterson. He was charged with the larceny of sixty-one watches, three diamond rings and twenty-seven gold chains, all valued at $1,269, from Sonnabend.

By the time the case reached the Superior Court Levinson's people had made restitution and so the case was placed on probation. Levinson comes from a good family. Shortly after his release he quit Boston.

Levinson's confession was confirmed to District Attorney Whitman to-day. His revelations have been given to the grand jury and, it is expected, will result in a number of indictments when the jury is ready to report.

Flats Abandoned.

Clews given by Levinson have been followed by the New York police, but beyond going to prove that Levinson is telling the truth they have been barren of result. In every case the police found that the persons named by Levinson had fled before the officers arrived. Deserted flats, some apparently hurriedly abandoned, but an hour or two before, were found in each instance. Whether Levinson's arrest was sufficient to give the alarm to the persons engaged with him in the white slave traffic or whether Levinson himself "tipped" them off that he was about to talk is something the police have been unable to learn. They are continuing the hunt. Persons named by Levinson will be sought throughout New York.

Full details of the traffic in young girls in the New York East Side cafes or coffee houses have been given by Levinson, and in many instances where girls were lured into the misery of white slavery the start was at a cheap moving picture show.

Levinson told of places where girls could be obtained at a moment's notice for shipment anywhere, of many instances of transfer, and of the part taken by police officials in the protection if not the fostering of the business.

Levinson's own life, as he is unfolding it, was a vicious one. He was with another woman at the time of his arrest, and among his belongings was found a letter of recent date from a girl in Seattle, telling him that for a while, at least, she would be unable to send him any more money.

His brother, an alleged assistant in the traffic, recently was discharged from Sing Sing prison, where he had served for grand larceny.

MISS MORGAN DODGES INQUIRY

OMAHA, May 6.—Standing on the platform of her private car at the Union Station, Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, appeared half amused and half perplexed when asked as to the truthfulness of the rumor that she might wed Judge Ben Lindsey, the Juvenile Court enthusiast of Denver.

"Well, he is doing a great work," was the quiet reply. "I spent a very pleasant time at the meeting of the children under his care—the Judge's kids, as they call them in Denver."

When the Judge was asked about the report in Denver, he said:

"The report is too silly to merit notice. There is not a word of truth in it."

BLAMES BOARD FOR BAD VEAL

The Board of Health is blamed by Dr. Francis H. Rowley, president of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for the sale of "bob" veal, with fatal effects, in Boston. He says that in a number of cases "bob" veal has caused the death of persons who have eaten it. He also says that the flesh of calves which have been starved in transit from New York points to the slaughter houses is poisoned, and that in one case a man who had eaten such veal died of violent poisoning in five hours.

"The Boston Board of Health could stop this whole nefarious business in a week if it wanted to," said Dr. Rowley.

LETTERS READ BY BALLINGER

WASHINGTON, May 6.—The gruelling of Secretary Ballinger began in earnest today after the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee was delayed for some time because of lack of a quorum.

Mr. Ballinger, under cross-examination, began reading a series of letters written directly after the last Presidential campaign, indicating his readiness to accept a government position. One of these letters was addressed by Mr. Ballinger to Frank A. Hitchcock, now Postmaster-General, in which, speaking of Secretary Garfield, he said: "He has my present lasting friendship and support."

Another letter from Ballinger to Garfield reads: "My intense admiration and loyalty to you would prevent me from being a candidate for the post of Secretary of the Interior."

After several other letters had been read the entire series was placed in the record. Other letters were read to show that President Taft sought to have Ballinger appoint John F. Vivian, chairman of the Republican State Committee of Colorado, to a good position in the reclamation service, on recommendation of Senator Guggenheim. He had declined because the position did not pay enough.

19-YEAR-OLD COUPLE ELOPED

LYNN, May 6.—Nineteen-year-old Alice M. White has not only given up her graduation prospects, but has also braved parental displeasure by eloping to Nashua, N. H., with Perley Randall, a Lynn youth of her own age.

Young Mrs. Randall, who did not intend to let her parents know about the wedding at first, said to-day that so long as the secret was out she did not care to keep it; that she was happy and that she would try to win her parents over.

The couple were married at Nashua yesterday. They were accompanied to Nashua by Mrs. Margaret Snow, a friend of the bride, who eloped two years ago from a private school in Arlington, and by George Munn, a chum of the bridegroom.

Returning from Nashua they went last night to the home of Mrs. Snow's mother, Mrs. George W. Lord of 51 Thomas road, Swampscott. It was from Mrs. Lord's house that the eloping bride to-day sent over the telephone that she was happy and was in seek forgiveness.

Mrs. Randall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. White of No. 66 Harwood street. A year ago she met Randall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Randall of No. 3 Nichols street, and a chauffeur for Arthur J. Blood, who nearly made an objection when Randall used his auto to give his sweetheart an occasional ride.

The White thought their daughter too young to wed, however, and objected strongly.

Miss White left home yesterday, ostensibly to visit Mrs. Snow in Swampscott. In the afternoon Randall arrived in an auto. From Swampscott he telephoned to City Clerk Arthur L. Cyr of Nashua, who is used by this time to sudden calls from out-of-town couples. The elopement party arrived in Nashua in the evening and the marriage was performed by Cyr. There was a merry wedding supper at a Nashua hotel and a ride home to Swampscott.

BOSTON SCHOONER IS ASHORE AT CHATHAM

CHATHAM, May 6.—The Gladys and Nellie, a fishing schooner from Boston, went ashore here to-day at the eastern end of Handkerchief shoals at high water and since the tide dropped has pounded badly. Special scenery has been engaged from the Castle Square Theatre, and there will be a large orchestra. The book of "The Silver Tureen" is by Stanton Hill, and the music by Charles P. Scott, both Boston men. The piece has bright lines and amusing situations, and the music is tuneful throughout.

The Malden Club is the oldest social organization in the city from which it takes its name, and its members are of high social standing there.

Those Suits You Advertise At $10

This is the slogan that's doing the business at Wolf's today. If there was one there were at least five hundred that made this query of us last Saturday alone. Never has a campaign on one particular thing brought bigger, more satisfying returns than the one we've been carrying out on these $10 suits.

Why, we've had men ask to see these suits who would never think of paying less than $15 or $18 for a suit—and so carried away have they been that most of them have gone away with one on their back. One man came in the store the other day and said, "Say, I've heard so much about those $10 suits of yours that I have come in purposely to see them." "Well," he exclaimed after examining them, "I'm an old clothing man myself and know something about value, and how, with clothing prices so high in the air as they are to-day, you can sell as good suits as these for a ten-dollar bill gets me." Yes, and "it gets" lots of others, too.

Those Men's Suits For $10

They're the talk of the town. They've set the merchants guessing — they've given the men who want to pay a medium price for a suit of clothes the best go for their money ten dollars was ever made to buy. Oh, we wouldn't blame you a bit if you shrugged your mental shoulders and sniffed. But if you don't believe what we say you had better come here and believe the suits themselves.

Women's $15 Suits For $12

How do we do it? By knowing how to buy—and a willingness to let you come in for more than a mere "look in." These are not imaginary $15 values, but the real $15 article. The materials are serges, in plain or fancy weaves of blue, gray, reseda and black. The coats are made with a straight front or with a seam over the bust, and have shawl or notched collars; the skirts are plain side plaited.

FINE DAY FOR SPEED BOYS TO WHIP YANKEES

CHOYNSKI SAYS JEFF'S SPEED AND STAMINA SIMPLY MARVELOUS

By JOE CHOYNSKI.

Marvelous is the only word that describes Jimmy Jeffries' return to form I am in good condition, yet in this great man's hands I am but a mere baby. Jeffries' foot work, his blinding, his wonderful speed and his idea of distance is nothing short of perfect. I will state my judgment, the same being based upon years of activity, that Jeff could be in shape to fight Johnson inside of a week. This statement is not made as the first flush of my surprise at finding Jeff in such shape, but is given after cool, calm and unbiased deliberation. Few people realize the condition he is in at the present time.

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

ROWARDENNAN, Cal., May 6.—The long looked for double-hook up with the gloves between Jeffries and Billy Papke and Jeff and Joe Choynski took place.

The big show was held in the open air hand ball court and the only man to camp who missed the exhibition was the Chinese dishwasher, who doesn't know the difference between a boxing glove and a string of beads. The dishing Papke, as aggressive as he could be under the circumstances, was helpless before the crushing rushes of the champion. Choynski, still a fast and clever boxer, did not command enough speed to keep him out of Jeffries' way. Joe's brilliant exhibition of foot-work only wound up with the little man being followed up and pinned against the wooden walls of the court.

Jim boxed three rounds with each of them, in addition to his regular afternoon gym work. The early morning layer consisted of a hard ten-mile grind on the road. Taken as a whole, Jeffries' work was the most interesting and impressive one he has done since his hangage was unloaded something like five weeks ago. What both Papke and Choynski think of Jeff today is shown in the signed statements of these gentlemen:

Jeff Faces Papke.

Jeffries started his routine work in the gymnasium at 3 o'clock, and a few minutes later moved into the ring to spend an hour at the boxing. Papke was the first to face Jim. Billy gave no evidence of being the least bit afraid of the big man, but locked fore in after a reckless fashion. He slipped in two or three clean jabs to the face, which only brought a grin from Jeff, who began crowding Papke, carrying him forward with every rush. Papke was fast, but Jim was faster. Billy was in good condition, but Jim was in better. The first round over with Papke face red and he was puffing as though he had been fighting for an hour. Jeff only chewing gum and he had not taken a long breath. Papke's efforts during the following two rounds brought praise from every one inside the ring.

The gloves were then shifted to Choynski's fists. When the bell in dark Jeffries, answering the call of time, his actions signalled the interesting fact that for the first time since his memorable draw battle in San Francisco on November 26, 1901, Joe Choynski and Jeff stood face to face in the ring.

Choynski Very Clever.

Joe's footwork and great cleverness were a revelation, but to Jeff they meant nothing. He smothered the lighter man completely, boxing all over and all round him during the nine minutes of fast work. The net result of the workout was to demonstrate the fact that Jeffries' wind and ring speed are all—and more—than any of the lackers could expect at this time, two months before the big battle.

A handball game and a long siege of bag punching finished up Jeffries' work at 4:30. He had been in action two hours.

Jeffries announced that he would start training to-morrow and run up to San Francisco to see the Sels-Floto circus.

JEFF TAKES DAY OFF TO ATTEND A CIRCUS IN FRISCO

ROWARDANNEN, Cal., May 6.—This is another off-day in Jeffries' training camp.

The big fellow left on an early morning train for San Francisco to see the sights at the Sells-Floto circus. "I promised Floto when I was in Denver that I would have a look at his circus and I am going to make good," said Jeff, as he swung aboard the train. "But I will be back to-morrow ready to make up for lost time."

An effort was made this morning to get an expression of opinion from Jeff on the referee question. "I don't care to discuss the referee matter or to remark myself in any way on the affair," said he. "Berger is representing my interests and I am leaving the entire matter in his hands."

"I have not mentioned referee even to my closest friends and do not intend to start in now—neither have I been in telephone communication with any newspaperman on this subject. I am satisfied Berger will only select a referee for the position who would be objectionable to me. That is all I have to say."

Jeffries's absence did not interfere with Bill Papke's training progress, a picture of which was a lively three-round go with Choynski. Both looked fine. Papke is in great shape and those who have watched his work predict a quick uppercut for Jim.

The question of a referee for the Jeffries-Johnson fight continues to be the general topic of conversation among fight fans. All kinds of reports are being circulated. One has it that an understanding has been reached at a Wednesday conference. Another has it that Johnson will hold out for Jack Welsh and, enough the promoters to select a man while still another has it that Jeffries will not consent to be held while Jeff is in town attending the circus.

The latter report there seems to foundation after the fighters have made a rather unexpected trip to the city. Whatever is the cause for the cause it is nog likely the general public will be taken into the confidence of the fighters until after the meeting of May 16. Jeffries absolutely refuses to discuss the situation.

Johnson is less conservative, but there is no assurance that he is telling what is on his mind. He declares that he is for Jack Welsh first, last and all the time, which is in direct contradiction of his statement prior to Wednesday's conference that Eddie Graney would be an acceptable arbitrator.

Summed up, Charles Eyton appears to be the only one of the four men prominently mentioned who is out of the running.

Before and After the Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

George Stallings, one of the most companionable of men when his team is winning, is at the Copley Square Hotel with the New York American League Club. It is well to keep away from Mr. Stallings after a losing game, but as his team did not play yesterday, and he was still basking in the sun of Wednesday's victory over the Washington club, he was the personification of geniality when the writer of these notes greeted him to-day.

"My team is going along very well and they are all in great shape," said the manager of the Yanks with a smile.

Mr. Stallings is a Southerner and a farmer in no small way, he having some hundreds of acres under cultivation near Macon, Ga. Even the fact that he will be obliged, owing to the frosts, to replant his entire cotton territory, failed to ail this amiable.

"Yes, my team is doing very well. It has not been hitting as well lately as it did at first, but that's all right. Pitching is the best first baseman in the world (Chase was passing). I'm glad I got Wolter from the Red Sox. He is one of my mainstays; fits in just right.

"I never saw such fielding as the Red Sox put up against our team at the opening of the season. I hear their pitchers are coming around, and if this is so they have a team that will be feared. Coach Mack has a great team in the Athletics. His fine, seasoned pitchers help him more than one would imagine. It is a very well balanced team. The rest of us will have to go some to best out that Philadelphia bunch."

There are twenty players, the manager, secretary and three war correspondents in the party from New York. All hands were glad that yesterday's game was postponed. As much as they dislike double headers, cold fingers dread the cold days.

With the passing of Chief Leroy, who goes back to the St. Paul club, the Red Sox will be left with eight pitchers—Cicotte, Smith, Wood, Arellanes, Hall, Barbeich, Collins and Karger. That number seems to be plenty to go through the season with. Thus far little or no fault can be found with the new staff. They have not lost the games the Red Sox have lost. Two of them are left-handers. Of the lost, all have had a whack at it except Barbeich. Everybody says Barbeich is a good pitcher. Hugh Duffy, of the White Sox, swears by him.

Elmer Bates says:

"Those be the days when a certain Mr. John A. Heydler, secretary of the National League, can well afford to sit back in his big chair in the St. Louis building in New York and look pleasant.

"Heydler was the logical candidate for president of the league. He knew the game from A to Z; he had the entire confidence of the public; he had the unqualified support of every baseball writer in the country.

"Now the very men who brought former Umpire Tom Lynch forward for the position are snarling and quarrelling among themselves and regretting in a way that they didn't stand to reason and give the job to 'Johnny' Heydler.

"In the meantime, Mr. Heydler is sitting in cozy comfort in his big chair at National League headquarters in New York while President Lynch is doing the worrying."

MRS. HANKS SELLS HER HANDSOME YACHT

The Hollis Burgess Yacht Agency has sold the large schooner house boat Clarina, owned by Mrs. C. S. Hanks of Boston, to well-known Boston yachtsman. Clarina is 108 feet long and 24 feet wide, has five staterooms, and is probably the handsomest and best arranged houseboat on the Atlantic coast.

The same agency has also sold the 31-foot water line auxiliary sloop Quinno, owned by W. Irving Van Wart of New York, to Philip P. Chase of Milton, and the 21-foot knockabout Dixie, owned by Charles Doe of Atlantic Plain to Ralph C. Turner of Dorchester.

YACHT SHOOFLY SOLD TO A BOSTON MAN

The John G. Alden Yacht Agency has sold the 15-foot water line Hull one design class knockabout Shoofly, owned by R. E. Winslow of Quincy, to G. L. Davis of Boston, who will use the boat for racing at Hull.

The same agency has sold the 15-foot waterline cutdeck sloop, owned by R. A. Smith of Jackson, to Langdon T. Alden of Sakonet Point, R. I. Also the 21-foot four metre raising keel sloop, owned by C. L. Billings of the Boston Yacht Club, to Walter Aldig of Beverly.

Mr. Alden also has an order from Commodore Fitzroy Lloyd of the Shanghai Yacht Club, Shanghai, China, for a 30-foot waterline cruising sloop on the lines of a Gloucester fishing schooner. This boat is now being built at Shanghai, and the sails, rigging, etc., are being made in England. The principal dimensions are 43 feet over all, 30 feet load waterline length, 9 feet draught. Commodore Lloyd will use the boat for long cruises in the eastern seas. The boat is to be built especially heavy on that account.

Mr. Alden has an order from R. H. White for a 17-foot gasolene launch on the one design class. The launch Peregrine. The boat is being built by the David Fenton Company at Marblehead.

GREAT INTEREST IN MORIARTY-DOHERTY GO

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 6.—Quite a number of Boston fight fans are coming here to-night to see the bout between Jack Moriarty of Lowell and Jeff Doherty of New Haven, Ct., at the Queen City A. C. The men are to weigh in this afternoon at 4 o'clock and box ten rounds. The go is to be for fifteen rounds. If Moriarty wins the bout, he has been promised the chance to meet Leo Houck at the Armory A. A. in Boston.

Taylor's Team Wins.

The Stock Exchange House team of the I. M. Taylor Company defeated the team of the Wiggin & Elwell Company by the score of 6 to 7 in a six inning game at Wood Island Park.

CARR BREAKS ARM IN BOUT AT BROCKTON

BROCKTON, May 6.—Fighting gamely, Dutch Carr of Charlestown went through six rounds of a scheduled twelve-round battle with Heywood Briggs and then was oddled to quit with a broken arm. Carr was hopelessly beaten up to the time the bout ended but would have stuck till he was put away and out if the accident hadn't happened to make such a thing necessary, as disabled he never had a chance in the world the way Briggs was fighting.

Carr substituted for Jig Stone, who drew the color line after the match had been made with the tough Brockton boxer, but he knew what he was up against. In spite of fighting a rugged eight-round bout with Joe Nelson of Lawrence at the Armory A. A. in Boston on Tuesday night, Carr consented to take Stone's place but was doing a bit too much in the boxing line.

After the bout Carr had the broken bone set by a local physician.

Young Jasper of Boston defeated Tony Corrigan in the first professional encounter of the latter, who several weeks ago won the amateur 115-pound championship in Boston. The boys were even at weight.

Ed Hedley and Ray Miller of Boston, two colored boys, had a lively go, Miller getting a lot of punishment and finally going down for the count in the third round.

BRADLEY OWNS COLT TROTTERS

Both the trotting and the Arabian horses at Peter B. Bradley's Hingham Farm are in perfect condition. Trainer Miller is developing a number of the get of Mr. Bradley's grandly bred stallion, Border Knight, by Ringen, out of a daughter of Peter the Great, on the farm track and is greatly pleased with them. He also is working three two-year-old fillies—Frances Hall, by Walnut Hall, dam Frances, by Mokoi; Fury Silk by Mokoi, dam Green Silk, by Pedigal, and Francis Priable, by Ozono, dam Frankel, by Epaulet.

Besides the very fine get on the Moko filly, he has shown him an eighth in twenty-seconds, thirteen in 2:32 and a mile last season will be campaigned this year.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

BOXER HALL ROBBED OF DECISION

It might have been his color that counted against him, but Harry Hall should have been given a draw in his eight-round bout with Tim Sullivan of Newburyport at the American A. C., last night.

The colored boy put up a game fight, giving away weight, reach, height and was handicapped to a certain extent by his dark skin as the white man was being constantly urged to go in and beat his foe.

Hall carried the fighting all the way and could not have possibly got worse than a draw in spite of the faint rally that Sullivan made in the final round in order to sway the opinion of the referee and he certainly did it easily enough.

Such decisions do not help a club any as the fans like to see a winner given his laurels no matter what the color may be.

If a referee hasn't got backbone enough to give a decision according to the merits of the battle, he is certainly unskilled to act. The fans were crazy to see the white man win but there was a big proportion of fair minded ones who were willing to see the colored boy get the nod, as he was not blinding their eyesight by lack of intelligence of the boxing game.

For seven rounds Hall was the aggressor, trying hard to win by a knockout. Then Sullivan made a protest as a rally that he considered a little of agreement.

The opening bout of six rounds between Dick Hurley of Charlestown and Jack Maloney of Cambridge was called a draw. In the next bout, Tommy Fax of Somerville stopped Mike Palmer of New York in a round.

SUBURBAN MEET COMES JUNE 2

The annual outdoor track meet of the Suburban League will be held this year on Thursday afternoon, June 2, at the Everett High school Athletic field. The members of the league are Everett High, Melrose High, Medford High and Malden High Schools, and each will be allowed to enter six men in each event, but only four of the six will be allowed to run.

The events are: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, 880-yard run, mile run, running high and broad jumps and putting the sixteen-pound shot. The club has been aroused in the four schools that compete in the league, and the coming meet ought to be the most successful ever attempted. Entries will close May 28, with the respective managers of athletics at the various schools.

DUAL MEET AT DEDHAM.

DEDHAM, May 6.—The Dedham High School and Somerset A. C. of Germantown will hold a dual meet Saturday afternoon at Stone Park. The events are: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, mile run, high jump, broad jump, shot put, jump, standing broad jump, and relay race.

M'CONNELL TO BE OPERATED ON

'Amby' McConnell, second baseman of the Red Sox, will be operated upon tomorrow for appendicitis at the private home of Miss Annie McDowell, No. 172 Newbury street, Back Bay. The operation will mean that he will be out of the game for the rest of the month.

McConnell's condition is not serious and an operation at this time is not absolutely imperative. Attending physicians decided that an operation now would be better as convalescence would be more rapid than in the summer months.

Dr. W. A. Brooks of No. 167 Beacon street will perform the operation and will be assisted by Dr. Sibley of Brookline. McConnell will remain at the McDowell hospital for at least two weeks.

The popular second baseman has been troubled with a bad side for some time. He did not accompany the Boston American team on its recent trip to Washington and Philadelphia.

Rest was prescribed for him. Although he laid off several days his ailment grew worse, with the result that another examination showed that the disability was due to appendicitis.

STRAIGHT DOPE

FOR SPORT FANS

NOW EVERYBODY WHO'S BEEN kicking about Amby McConnell not having the old ginger this season and part of last, knows the reason why the little fellow hasn't been able to do his best. He is to be operated on to-morrow for appendicitis. A queer thing about McConnell's trouble is that Germany Shaefer caused it all when he scrubbed into Amby on the base line last Summer, and recently Shaefer and Kid Elberfeld tried, judging from reports of the games at Washington, to hand Tris Speaker a few bumps. Let's hope Speaker's injuries that kept him out of the game for a day or two recently won't have such lasting qualities as did McConnell's.

AT LAST THE WEATHERMAN HAS turned on what looks like mighty good baseball weather for this time of the year and the Red Sox will have their delayed home-coming game this afternoon. After the sort of weather the fans of Boston have had to put up with for the past couple of weeks, just the sunshine looks awful good and they forget that it's a little bit cold and that it ever did rain.

HERE IS WHERE MY COLUMN MAY do a little bit of good by uniting old friends. That's a nice location for a club room all right—"Near the old stone barn on Beer Hill." Real class there. Now, Mickey, if you're the man in question will you kindly up Mr. McGuire off to that fact.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Hello! Say I got colony every night, I saw Mickey Cantwell's name. I had a friend one time the same name as Mickey. He was a member of the Hinkey Do Club that had a club room near the Old Stone Barn on Beer Hill in Providence. Would you please find if you can do so or please put me wise to him if you can do so please find out his address and oblige. HUGH M'GUIRE.

I GUESS OSCAR BATTLING NELSON put the crusher on all the talk about Ian boxing some of the lightweights who have been clamoring for matches ever since the Dane was set back by Wolgast, last night when he remarked that he wouldn't box any one until he met Wolgast in a return engagement or until Ad refuses one. Wolgast has always maintained that he will give Ad another match some time next Fall so if Nelson holds to his statement of last night, it looks like a mighty quiet summer for the Durable Dane.

Perron is a good boy and won from Houck on a foul at the Armory Club several weeks ago, but it seems to me he's framing up an awfully sestion warm for himself. Here's his manager's letter:

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—Seeing in the Boston American that Leo Houck states he will box any welter in the world at 147 pounds, I wish to have a meeting match with Frank Perron of this city. Perron is open to met him under any conditions, weight, time, and time of day, and so informed him last Tuesday evening at the Armory A. A., but he would not give me any definite answer when we proposed a return match. He is also open to meet Jack Dooley, or Tommy Quill. Respectfully yours,

JOHN NOLAN,

No. 8 Sharon street, Pawtucket, R. I.

RODNEY SMITH, ROXBURY.—ANdrews Sporting Record shows that Joe Choynski hung a knockout on the chief features of Jack Johnson in three rounds at Galveston, Texas, in 1901. That's the only time on record that he has been put away.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Dear Sir—I am a constant reader of your good dope, and would like to arrange bouts with any 105-pound boys. Hoping to see this printed, I remain, yours,

The hardest hitting so far has been done by the Cubs in the National League and by the Bostons, Athletics and Detroits in the American. The Bostons have done the lightest hitting in the National and the White Sox in the American, including last Saturday's games.

TITER'S PLAN OF MAKING SPEED WITH COLTS

Henry Titer is one of those trainers that has ideas of his own about making speed with colts. He has a faculty of getting them to take an interest in the game at an early point in their education. "The more you can learn a youngster in the early part of the season when the weather is cool, so much the better. You can get them balanced, teach them to like the speed idea and at the same time put push and muscle on them," says Titer of colt training.

Titer declares that it is the trainer who keeps his youngsters in a hand-box during the days when the weather is cool and, when the hot days set in comes to the conclusion that he is behind the schedule that most often comes to grief with his futurity prospects.

Titer has a very promising lot of youngsters in training. That he is pursuing his usual idea as to training them is shown by the following workouts that have been done by two-year-olds in his string.

A two-year-old colt by Bingen, out of a daughter of Arion, has been a mile in 2:22, a quarter in 37 seconds and an eighth in 17 seconds. A black filly by Todd, owned by Guy James, has stepped a mile in 2:18, and is considered by the critics to be one of the best of her age that has shown at the track in a number of seasons. Another colt, owned by Harry Johnson, and by Aquilin, has been an eighth in 12 seconds.

MAY WILL KEEP HIS COLT IN FUTURITIES

J. Walter May has a letter from Lon McDonald, in which that well known trainer states that his stable of horses arrived at Indianapolis yesterday. McDonald says that his horses have wintered finely and that he expects to have one of the best stables he has ever trained.

He advised May to pay up in all of the three-year-old stakes for his colt by Bingen, 2:06¼, out of a daughter of The Corker, son of Hex Americus. This colt was in Henry Titer's stable last season and showed enough to convince anyone that he is a real stake prospect.

Harvard Athletic News

By W. E. BURTON

P. Newton, Harvard's second best two miler to Herbert Jaques, will be in the Dartmouth meet. This was announced yesterday by Coach Donovan. While going around the track the other day, Newton slightly strained his ligament but the injury was very slight and the Crimson two-mile jogger is expected to be all right for the meet with the Green to-morrow.

Newton has come up wonderfully in the practices this year and he is looked upon as the logical successor to Jaques. He has a stride that reminds one of Jaques and almost the same amount of endurance.

No finds, phenoms or dark steeds were unearthed by Coaches Donovan and Quinn at the consolation track games at the Stadium yesterday afternoon. D. B. Adams, '12, who won the quarter mile in 54 2-5 seconds, was the only runner whose performance deserved mention. It is possible that Adams may be taken on the varsity squad and given a place in the quarter mile contest. Harvard is particularly weak in this event and all the likely candidates that appear from now on will be given a chance. The track coaches are thinking seriously of holding a few extra practice games to turn up some more material for the sprints.

Captain C. C. Little, who has unexpectedly recovered sufficiently from the injury to the bones of his wrist to put the shot again, is said to have rounded into his old form with a throw of over forty-two feet. While his wrist was injured Little had been devoting himself with great success to the broad jump, in which he can jump over twenty-two feet. Little's wrist is not yet entirely strong and Coach Quinn has been sparing the big athlete as much as possible. Little's reappearance has made the Crimson more confident of winning the shot put in both dual meets than before. Before Little came back H. L. Goddard was the only likely point winner that Harvard had in this event, and even his work was not up to that of the Crimson captain's.

Coach Quinn seems to have great success in devising harnesses to support and strengthen the wrists of the various Crimson athletes. Necessity is the mother of invention and necessity has played an important part in Harvard's track situation this Spring. Barr has been brought back into something like his old form by a wrist supporter of complicated pattern invented by Coach Quinn, and now the Harvard trick coach has done the same trick for Captain Little in the shot put.

Many Crimson fans look for Holy Cross to turn the tables on Harvard at Worcester to-morrow. Hicks and Foley will again face each other in the box. Potter, Harvard's regular second sacker, has not yet fully recovered from the injury to his leg, and will probably not appear in the batting order.

"McLaughlin is the only man on the Harvard nine that stands up to the plate like a leaguer," said a close follower of Harvard's team the other day. The trouble with Harvard this year is that nearly every player seems to be afraid of the ball. Aronson still retains his reputation of being a hard hitter, but for two years he has done no swatting worth mentioning.

For the second time in practice spins this Spring the Harvard crew has been crowded hard by the Freshman and second crews, and in general the boat seems to lack the power that characterized it last year.

A world's record, together with some of the fastest bowling since the commencement of the national tournament, was what the Worcester contingent turned off at the Adams Square Alleys last night. Hedburg of Worcester, in the individual candles, rolled 360, which places him in first place for the individual trophy and a world's record at candle pins.

Pity the Petty, Penurious Man---His Lot Is Hard

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE man most to be pitied on earth is the man who sets out in life with the idea of making a competence by petty penuriousness or saving an inheritance by that method.

Such men are sure to bring humiliation upon themselves and all those associated with them.

For instance, here is a true story of one such man---a man with a fortune which enabled him to travel with his family the world over, yet who was forever upon the watch that no penny possible to save should wander from the field of his purse.

After many weeks at a hotel he paid his bill and departed without gifts of tips to waiter or maid. He did not believe in tips; it was encouragement of a bad system, and he meant to teach the hotel where he had sojourned a wholesome lesson. (He also meant to save his pennies.)

After journeying about for some weeks the man found himself at midnight at the doors of this same hotel, asking for shelter for his family and himself.

Then He Was Shut Out

"No rooms for you, sir!" was the answer, and the door was closed in his face.

A more unhappy looking man it would be hard to find in a year's search than this same tourist of independent wealth. It is he who deserves most pity, not the kind and generous souled day laborer who has a nickel for the poor box and a word of sympathy for the beggar.

When I said I was sorry for this man others replied, "We are sorry for those with whom he associates."

"But they can escape his companionship at times," I asserted, "while this poor creature never can escape from himself.

"He has made himself into the hateful and obnoxious person he is, and now he must bear his own society day and night, and what a terrible punishment that is one need only behold him to see."

It is far better to be robbed two or three times during the course of a lifetime and forget it or live down the loss of fortune than to go through earth with the continual fear of losing a penny or a dollar by unwise giving.

The tipping system, we all know, is ignoble and wrong.

Some time there will be a condition of things which will do away with it.

In the great Co-operative Association of Brussels, Belgium, where I once had the pleasure of taking lunch, it was a delight to find happy-faced waiters and employes of all descriptions down to the "omnibus" and scullery maids, and boys, shares in the profits of the restaurant, and enforcing the "No Tip" regulation.

They were all partners in the business.

But until this system, or something equally just and dignified, takes the place of our present arrangements, we will be content in a reform of any nature by instituting a few places of silver from the generous who will move on to those places.

Besides, no one will miss the money withholding your tip from any such motive, and if you analyze your sympathies with scrutiny you will not believe it yourself, but will be forced to see that it is a plain case of mean of spirit.

One of the worst phases of this kind of meanness is that it offends others who are associated with it.

The Poor Pauper Has a Chance

The man referred to already kept careful watch over the purses of his family as well as his own, and a sweet-faced wife and a proud-spirited young son were afraid to add a nickel or a dime to a purse made up for a sick and needy chimneysmid at the hotel.

So they bore the contemptuous glances of their more liberal neighbors rather than face a scene with the head of the house later.

Some of the most prosperous men the world over has known began poor and gave freely of their small earnings while struggling for a foothold on the hill of success.

To such men money proves a blessing in that it adds to their powers of giving and receiving happiness. And it proves seed well planted---for dollars grow from seeds of benevolent dimes.

To the penurious man money acts as an accumulating curse, making him more and more suspicious and avaricious, and seeing in all friendly approaches the masked bogar, and knowing nothing of the happiness of sharing his possessions, only the drug like intoxication of hoarding them.

Better be a poor pauper than a rich one; for the poor pauper has the hope of improving his condition, while the rich one becomes a chronic case; still worse, his disease proves contagious and blights his associates.

PRETTY COOK AND THE WARBLER

The Grocery Boy's Whistling Doesn't Make a Hit

By KENNETT HARRIS

THE grocery boy came up the steps whistling, and continued his melodious affectation into the kitchen, until the pretty cook spoke.

"Take this piece of string and tie that whistle to your foot, Harold," she said, sharply, tendering a stiff piece of twine.

"Say," she continued, "you put me in mind of a peanut roaster that's got out of order."

"Cheer!" exclaimed the grocery boy, cringing, "don't say cruel things like that, Evelina."

"Well, what makes you do such things?" demanded the cook.

"Ain't it Spring?" said the grocery boy. "Ain't all the little birds a-warbling and singing?"

"You're a dandy warbler, I don't believe," sneered the pretty cook. "You must think you're a Harts mountain canary. You'll be singing the next thing, and then somebody will call the patrol wagon. Put down some laundry soap for me."

Spring Grips the Grocery Boy

I will, if you've got to have it, but I wonder anybody can talk about laundry soap on a morning like this," said the grocery boy. "I wouldn't wonder if a fellow could find tulips, and daisies, and honeysuckles, and things out in the woods."

"I want some butter, too," said the pretty cook.

"Butter it is," assented the grocery boy, writing. "Butter makes me think of cows, standing, switching their tails and chewing their cuds in the fields of buttercups. Don't it you?

"It makes me think of goats," said the pretty cook, "specially when it's like that last. I made you take back. Put down four pounds of rice. Did I understand you to say that you had some nice young turnips?"

"I don't know whether you understood me or not, but that's what I said," replied the grocery boy. "I want to tell you that they ain't as young as they used to be, though. Most of what's left runs from the middle ages to elderly. It was a Tuesday I told you they was young. You want to think about that and let it be a lesson to you, Evelina."

"What do you mean, or do you know," asked the cook.

"I mean that time's a-flying," replied the grocery boy. "It's Spring now and the little birds are a-singing, and a-building their little nests. They ain't thinking about laundry soap and things like that. Knock off."

"You're Crazy," Said the Cook.

"You're crazy," said the pretty cook. "What other vegetables have you besides turnips?

"We've got some elegant prunes," replied the grocery boy, "and a fresh keg of anchovies. Don't you feel as if you would like to get away from all this, and get right next to nature, Evelina, my own?

When you rubber out o' th' window and see the sun a-shining and the south wind flapping them petticoats and things on the line---see them petticoats, Evelina?"

"Never mind what they are," said the pretty cook. "You'd better attend to your own business. I want a package of rolled oats and a package of custard powder, two cans of tomatoes, two pounds of loaf sugar, a dozen lemons."

"You don't expect me to hand you no lemons, do you?" interrupted the grocery boy, in a tone of reproach.

"I'll hand you something worse than a lemon, if you don't quit your foolishness and take my order," said the pretty cook. "I want another can of Mocha and Java. What vegetables did you say you had?"

"Peans, beans, beets, cucumbers, sparergrass---"

"What are the peas a peck?" inquired the pretty cook.

"They don't come in pecks! They come in just cans," replied the grocery boy. "Same with the beans and sparergrass. The cucumbers is in brine, but they're all right. Don't get mad now. I've got new potatoes, sure enough, and some nice cauliflower. Don't look at a man like that."

"You'll Get Gay Once Too Often"

"Some of these times I'll throw a dipper of scalding water over you," threatened the pretty cook. "You'll get gay once too often. You bring me a nice cauliflower and a half peck of them potatoes, and that's all I want of you."

"Don't you want to leave all this flour gravy, and Irish stew, and cornstarch pudding and stuff and come out to the country with me, and pick johnny jump-ups and pansy blossoms?" invited the grocery boy.

"I'll tell you what," said the pretty cook, reading the blooms, "if there isn't a johnny jumping out of here in about two seconds, there's going to be an empty chair where you board. Scat---and hurry back with them things, Harold."

REMOVE YOUR

FRECKLES

Dainty Cream That Is a Wonderful Treatment for This Trouble

If you want to remove your freckles, use a remedy that is made specially for this trouble. Freckles are really a special disease of the skin and there is only one safe treatment that is especially designed to remove freckles.

There is one remedy that never fails to remove freckles, Kinkho Beauty Secrets, known to women in New York as "Kinkho," and to thousands of women in Paris as "Kinkho" in this city, and without a single case reported.

We have sold it to our best trade and with infallible success, so that we gladly recommend it for removing freckles. Get a box at the Kinkho Toilet Goods department of Houghton & Dutton Co. (or Boston Store Co.) and see how quickly it removes your freckles. Full treatment 50c; extra strength for minor cases of summer freckles, 25c.

FOR THE BUST

A new method of home treatment for the development of the bust, originated by a famous physician who used it with great success in a large institute, can now be obtained by this city.

Seems to be for only one thing---to increase the bust, and it does not affect other parts of the body. It is so uniformly successful that the local agents are instructed to sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it is not successful.

There is no massaging, no steaming, no rubber appliances, nothing but a scientific treatment that stimulates the natural growth of the bosom and gives an increase of from three to six inches in a few weeks. A three weeks' treatment costs only $1.00 at Houghton & Dutton, or sent by mail postpaid by the Eunice Toilet Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN

AS TO WIVES AND VALETS

PROFESSOR P. H. Blount of Chicago has debated the question as to whether a man should impose upon his wife the duties of a valet, and has decided in the negative. "A man," says he, "ought not to make a valet of his wife, and that is what the majority of men are doing." This statement has been taken up by English novelists, who say they are surprised to learn that such a condition exists in America, but admit that the custom prevails in England. "We have always understood," says one novelist, "that the American husband is entirely subservient to his wife. Americans, however, know that the Englishman is too much petted by his wife. In certain classes in England this is not true. When a man of this type marries he calls upon his wife in very small dilemma. She must sew on his buttons, and his collar button, brush his hat and coat, and even open the front door for him.

What to Do When a Young Man Comes A-Courting

By DOROTHY DIX

PERHAPS one of the reasons why America leads the world in the number of its divorces is because in this country alone, of all civilized lands, are young people permitted to marry without any guidance from their elders.

We let a boy, who couldn't make a horse trade that would be binding on him, enter into a contract of marriage that involves his whole life. We permit a girl, who isn't considered to have enough judgment to pick out a silk dress, some mad mindful, choose a husband with whom she may have to live and quarrel for fifty years. No wonder so many American marriages turn out disastrously! The marvel is that they result as well as they do.

Although we are great marriers in this country, and all fathers and mothers must reasonably expect that their sons and daughters will commit matrimony in due time, there seems to be a false sense of shame that keeps parents from ever discussing the subject with their children, or taking any precautions regarding it.

The American Father's Fault

This is particularly true in regard to the American father, who seems to feel that he has no responsibility whatever about his daughter's husband, and who acts as if a girl getting married was as much in the nature of an accident as her being struck by lightning---something that is in the hands of Providence, and that he can neither promote nor avert.

It is literally true that the average father does not know, by name or sight, young man who visits his daughter, who takes her out to places of amusement. Still less does he know anything about the ability, the character and the habits of these youths, and about the first time he wakes up and begins to take notice is when Maude and a sheepish-looking strange youth walk into the library some night, hand in hand, and Maude says: "Papa, this is Mr. Terwilliger, and Percy and I are going to be married."

That rouses Papa up, as a general thing, and he begins to make a hurried investigation into the present and past of Mr. Percy Terwilliger; but it is overwhelmingly too late then, for if Maude has set her heart on marrying Percy, no matter what Papa finds out, she will go along and marry him just the same. And the divorce will follow in due season, if Percy happens to be a blackguard, instead of a gentleman. But it's no thanks to Papa, either way, in which the match turns out.

Let Daughter Marry a Bigamist

Sometimes Papa is as inert, so careless of his daughter's happiness, that he doesn't even take the trouble to investigate at all into what kind of a son-in-law he is getting.

I know of one case in which a man let his daughter marry a bigamist, and got off he had written a single letter to the town from which the man came, or gone to it---and it wasn't a hundred miles away ---to investigate the bridegroom's record, he could have saved the girl from a heartbreaking fate.

The time, however, to break up an undesirable match is before it happens, and, for that reason, any father who does his duty by his daughter keeps a line on every man who comes to his house. If he observes that young Tomkins has taken to sampling on his parlor chairs, he institutes a few casual inquiries as to that gentleman's general habits. If he runs across young Smith every afternoon in his front hall, he listens to what the other young fellows at the office and club have to say about young Smith. If he observes that young Jones is spending a good deal of money on taking Maude out, he invites Jones's employer out for a drink and finds out whether he is one of the sort of young men who go climbing up from desk to desk or who are going to stay put at the foot of the ladder.

More than that, he gets personally acquainted with the young men himself, and is given Maude the benefit of his hard-headed, masculine way of looking at them; for he sees through them as no woman possibly can. It isn't any good for young Tomkins to pose and posture and look romantic for Papa. "Sissy," he calls it. It isn't any use for Smith to bemoan his inherited tendency to drink to Papa. He doesn't see in him anything but a drunken loafer. Nor does the fact that Jones is always out of work because the world is bonded against him appeal to Papa. "Too no-account to hold down a job for the other fellow" he will say, and he will be right.

The woman who marries him will have to take in boarders to support him, is the way that Papa sizes up that gentleman.

A Men's Opinion 'Goes' with Her

And the criticism goes with Mamie. There is one thing that every woman is sensitive to, and that is a man's opinion of another man. It cuts her to the quick to know that other men have a contempt for the man she loves, or that they despise him as a weakling; and no, while a girl may not listen to her mother's advice on the subject of a husband, she would to that of her father, and it is the chance of shames that fathers so seldom speak up in time, to save her from making a miserable match.

In these days no man can hide his faults under a bushel. We all live too much out under the electric light for that. It is perfectly easy for any father to find out whether the suitor for his daughter's hand is a sober, clean-living, industrious youth who has got some good way of supporting a family, or whether he is idle, trifling and dissipated. Nor is that all. He can find out whether the youth is tyrannical, overbearing and mean, or whether he is generous, kindly and manly.

And, having found out, it is up to him to pass on the information to Mamie in such a way that she will choose the right man, instead of the wrong man, and thereafter be a happy woman instead of a wretched one.

Papa Should Be Best Man

Papa should, in reality, be the best man at the wedding, the Guardian Angel, instead of the figurehead who is standing behind the palms figuring up the expenses and wondering what sort of a son-in-law he is getting.

When the good God gives a man a girl baby, He lays on him a responsibility for providing her with something more than food and clothes, though the majority of fathers do not seem to think so.

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

THEY passed a magnificent building during their travels.

"That's a fine house," said Brown to Jones, "and yet I cannot bear to look at it."

"Why not?" asked Jones.

"Why?" repeated Brown. "Because the owner built it out of the aches and groans of his fellow men; out of the grief of children and the wails of women."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Jones. "The brute! What is he---a money lender?"

"Oh, no, dear friend; he's a dentist!"

PRINCESS AND SHOP GIRL

PRINCESS LOUISE of Belgium, whose prodigality has submerged her in a mass of debts, is extremely generous, and her kindness shows itself in many ways. An interesting story is told about her by a Paris shop girl who recently went to deliver a dress in the Princess In her hotel. Several alterations were required at once after the Princess tried it on. The girl promptly took a needle and thread and got busy. Princess Louise, with unconventional manner, began to chat with the girl as she worked. She observed a medal representing the Virgin of Lourdes, celebrated throughout Bohemia, hanging about the girl's neck. "What a pretty medal you are wearing, child," she said, "and how out of work because the girl took out a pearl necklace which she gave to the girl. When the girl returned to the shop her employer told her it must have cost $1,000.

Society and Stage Join Hands at Benefit to Aid Animal Rescue League

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

If the country annex of the Animal Rescue League isn't helped substantially by yesterday's "benefit" it isn't the fault of Mrs. Fiske and her company, nor of the other artists who assisted, or of society—for they all did their utmost to make the affair a success, and a success it surely was.

The Vincent Club girls, who ushered, and the younger smart-set matrons, who distributed flowers between the acts, also come in for their share of the glory.

Every feature was under the direction of the fashionables, who have charity as their special hobby and the Animal Rescue League and its work as their particular pet philanthropy.

Mrs. Fiske, in deciding to give the last acts of "Becky Sharpe" and "Tess," made a happy choice and appeared at her best. Miss Herford was a delight, as usual, and Holbrook Blinn gave two exceptionally fine readings.

The Vincent Club girls, who, by the way, are becoming quite adept in the art of ushering, seemed to be everywhere and were a refreshing picture in their immaculate white frocks and pink carnations.

Miss Evelyn Thayer was head usher, and had as her assistants the Misses Charlotte Allen, Dorothy Ball, Madeline Dixon, Margaret Stackpole, Dorothy Mondell, Julie Shepley, Mary D. Pierce, Grace Stackpole, Katherine V. Thayer, Elizabeth Parker, Margaret DeFord and Nora F. Thayer.

Mrs. John C. Fairchild, looking especially charming in a chic black serge suit and small black turban trimmed with pink rose-buds, was in charge of the distribution of flowers and had as assistants Mrs. Alfred Codman, Mrs. Robert J. Clark, Mrs. William B. Rogers, Mrs. Clarence Denny, Miss Eleanora Sears and Miss Anita Clark.

Among those in the audience were Mrs. Robert Walcott, in dark blue cloth and a small black hat; Mrs. Joseph Sargent, in black; Mrs. William D. Sohier, in black cloth; Mrs. George Sears, in dark blue; Mrs. Philip Saltonstall, in blue cloth and a large black hat; Mrs. Harris Livermore, in dark purple; and Miss Joan Bird, in black with a small black and white turban, which came down over her eyes, and had as trimming a sprig of scraggly black feathers on the left side. But, as usual, she looked charming, and with her distinguished mother and a party of friends, occupied a box.

Miss Ruth Winsor, whose engagement to Mr. Minturn of New York was recently announced, was among the younger girls there, and looked handsome in dark blue cloth and small dark hat.

Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., had with her her sister, Mrs. Lavalle, and both wore gowns of black.

Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott (Hannah Stevenson) was in dark blue cloth and a large white hat, and was with her mother, Mrs. Robert Stevenson, in black.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT"

HOW A WOMAN BANKRUPTS HER HUSBAND BY HER EXTRAVAGANCE

By John A. Moroso

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

"FRANCIS," he said, gravely, "this is the first hour of a new life in our lives. We are to start out afresh and worse than empty handed, for we shall have to work for the payment of the debts the old life has cluttered about us. Are you strong enough to share in the task? You want a reason for reproaching me. You have it, but you do not realize it. I have been too indulgent. It is all my fault.

"I began by treating you as a spoiled child and as a doll. With every fresh indulgence of your vanity and selfishness your womanly strength has been further stifled. Adversity finds you whining and helpless. The prospect of your gay playthings being taken from you strikes blank horror to your heart.

"Shoeless and the sleep of the just, work and its reward of shelter and the necessities of life mean nothing to you. Children perishing in the tenements of this city, killed off in the Summer like flies that have been poisoned, would not be a fact that would strike you as incongruous beside your purchases of automobiles, laces and silks and the giving of expensive dinners to people too rich to even enjoy them.

"Where is the woman in you, my dear? What has become of it? Is it entirely choked out by the lush grass of humanity you have chosen as your field?"

She made no reply and he doubted whether she had listened to a word he had said.

"Bring me the liars, Frances," he commanded.

"Oh, not to-night, Dick," she replied, starting.

"To-night and now, and everything else that can be turned into money," he decreed.

"But I haven't got it, Dick," she stammered.

"You have sold it?"

"I needed a little money and I pawned it. It will be easy to redeem it."

"And that is as much as you cared for a wedding gift?" he asked. "Bring me the corals and the other jewels."

"The corals?" she asked stupidly.

"Yes."

"Oh, Dick. I had to get a loan on them, too. You remember the large dinner and dance we gave last Winter, and you know how very expensive it was, and, Dick——"

"Do you mean to tell me that you have had the hardihood, the daring, to pawn those gifts of my mother?" Dick asked, striding to her in a rage he could hardly control. "Do you mean to sit there and say that those corals, priceless because of the sacred memories they have meant to my mother, have been turned over to a pawnshop keeper that food and wine and gaiety should be given a pack of worthless idle, sensual, scandal-making men and women?"

His clenched fist was half raised.

"Oh, don't beat me, Dick!" she half screamed, her blood freezing with fear. "For the love of God, Dick!"

Ward mastered himself and returned to his desk. He lighted a pipe and pulled at it savagely before he trusted himself to speak another word.

"Leave the room," he said.

"Dick, I have something to tell you," Frances began.

"Go!"

"Dick, I am not such a bad wife," she said, fumbling at her waist.

He half rose from his chair and pointed to the door. She looked up at his face and, with a cry of fear, fled to her bedroom and locked herself inside with the unclean money she had obtained that night.

CHAPTER XV.

OF the next day Dick spared just a moment of the precious hours to see Monty and Claire start on their brave trip to Arizona. The faithful Phil was at the house early, and went with him and the bride and bridegroom to the Grand Central Station.

Tickets had been bought for them as far as Chicago.

As the little party reached the depot Claire asked what train they were to take.

"The Twentieth Century Limited," Dick told her.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, and then began to whisper to Monty.

"What's the trouble?" inquired Phil. "Funds short? I can stand for a small loan."

"No," answered Monty, proudly. "My wife says that there is an extra charge of $10 on that train, and that we are to take the next. She wants to save the ten."

"We'll just tell you good-by and then we'll kill the time by telling aunt Gretchen an revoir," said Claire. "Maybe we can get her to invite us to lunch. If she doesn't my handbag is full of good sandwiches, and Monty and I will have a picnic over in Bryant Park, won't we, Monty?"

"Monty Will Make Good."

So the two grownups "told the children good-by," after Phil had taken Monty to one side and had made him promise to wire him for a loan should he need money in the West.

"Monty is going to make good in this world, as sure as I am living," said Phil to his friend as they left the bride and bridegroom. "He's got the finest sort of capital to go on—that girl. She's a chip of a thing, but she's got the sticking qualities in her."

"She will make a splendid woman," said Dick as they turned to wave their hands to the young folk.

They turned down into the subway and, in a few minutes, were in Cartwright's office, where Dick was to sign the petition in voluntary bankruptcy.

"We won't include your note with my endorsement in the list of liabilities, Dick," said Phil. "I consider it as good as gold. I'll pay that note and I can afford to wait any old time for its repayment. Don't worry about it at all. I know what I am doing. When I've cut $30,000 off the list of what you owe, it makes the failure a pretty slight affair and one that you can get over all the more quickly. It will give your other creditors about 75 per cent. of their money and the other 25 per cent. we will work off from time to time.

"If ever a man had a true friend, Phil," Dick replied to the generous proposition, "I have had one in you. Blake Brothers have offered me $10,000 a year and I have taken the offer. I shall live down to the limit of economy and pay off as quickly as possible. In a year or two, I may be able to get on my feet and start all over again. It is merely a question of work and economy."

"Nobody doubts your capacity and capability, Dick," suggested Phil. "I was just thinking that the economy end of it might come hard—er—you see—Frances——"

"I know what you mean," Dick replied to the suggestion.

"Don't mind me saying that, old man," Phil said.

"No, Phil; no. The end has come with her and it may mean the making of her."

"You are going to separate?" asked Cartwright.

"Not unless she asks it," replied Dick. "But if she wants to live with me as a wife she shall live in a different way. We leave the house to-night. Jim Hampton, who wanted it before we took it, meets me there this afternoon to take it off my hands. The auctioneer comes to-morrow to take charge of the things in it."

"Good boy," said Phil.

CHAPTER XVI.

SUFFERN THORNE, fresh from the hands of his valet, left his apartment on the Avenue for a stroll through the handsomely dressed crowd that parades, when the sun is shining and the air balmy any late Spring morning.

While the Avenue bulked with motors and fine equipages, drawn by blooded horses, the sidewalks were also crowded with the fashionable, who wanted the exercise that walking gives.

Thorne dropped into a florist's place at Forty-second street, selected a boutonniere and, swinging a light, gold-tipped cane, continued his stroll.

As he reached Fiftieth street a gloved hand waved to him from an electric phaeton. He bowed and smiled and would have continued on his way had not the handsomely dressed woman signalled to him to come to her. The mounted police had held up the traffic to give the cross street tide of machines and carriages a chance to go on their way.

"Morning, Mrs. Austin," he said in greeting as he went to her.

"I'll take you for a ride," invited Mrs. Austin. "I've learned to handle this electric very well, and I'll send my man home."

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Lending interests are inclined to take a cheerful view of the stock market, as they have finally decided that the reports of crop damage were grossly exaggerated. Record crops as well as record general business now seem to be reasonably certain this Summer. There has been a general shifting of market positions and all persons of importance are working for higher prices in stocks.

Atchison continues to do better and the insiders are beginning to talk of 120 for it again. Crop news always has an effect upon this stock, and as the reports from Kansas are better than they were traders are more inclined to pick up the issue. More interest is being taken in the security as the market advances. The short interest is being retired.

A report comes from London that copper producers in all parts of the world are much worried over the big surplus of metal that has been accumulated by the Tanganyika Concessions in the Congo. The report says that by September when the railroad is ready to handle copper metal the Tanganyika will have about 200,000,000 pounds ready for delivery. This copper has not been counted in the supplus stock of the world. Its threatened appearance on the open market is likely to create some excitement.

Iron production figures for April show that curtailment is well under way. This should not be a stimulating factor, as it is well known that production since the first of the year has been running beyond the capacity of the finishing mills and foundries of the country.

East Butte produced 7,126 tons of ore during March and 8,000 tons during April, the average recovery being about eighty pounds of copper to the ton. The fine dust is not included in these figures, which would add materially to these results.

LOCAL STOCK MARKET QUIET

In response to the decline in the London and New York markets the local market opened with a somewhat downward tendency and after the first hour became very inactive.

The principal factor was the illness of King Edward, which the bears used as an excuse for driving down prices.

Copper shares were the weaker, but little stock was brought out. Traders seemed to feel confident that the break was only temporary and that the general firm tone which the market has shown during the past few days would again make its appearance.

The continued strength of Massachusetts Gas was a feature which gave much strength to the miscellaneous list, and some buying was noticeable about noon.

ANOTHER LYNN HOUSE ROBBED

LYNN, May 6.—Another robbery in the heart of the "Diamond District." Lynn's most exclusive residential section, occurred last night when a burglar entered the home of Sewell Clark, the millionaire shoe manufacturer and carried off Mr. Clark's watch valued at $300 and a diamond watch fob of the same value. Entrance was made through a front cellar window. This is one of several daring robberies which have occurred within the past three weeks, and which the police have been trying to unravel.

Although the robber ransacked his room, Mr. Clark says that he did not hear any noise and not until this morning did he known that anything was missing.

Idiots That Frighten Children

A New and Rather Mild Sample of Their Work

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

A child was missing at Washington, Pennsylvania, the other day. Thirty men dragged the river, other groups of men searched through the country.

At the end of the day the boy, six years old, returned to his mother as night was falling to ask "whether the census man had gone."

Some idiot had told this child that the enumerators "take away bad boys."

The little boy had been guilty of some fault, and when he saw the census man appear at the door of his mother's house he ran away and hid.

The parents thought of kidnappers and all sorts of possible accidents, and spent a day of most painful anxiety. Dozens of men searched in vain.

It was the work of one of the many millions of idiots THAT STUPIDLY FRIGHTEN CHILDREN.

Men and women ought to know by this time that the most important thing in a human being is that human being's COURAGE. Self-reliance, confidence in the good intentions of others, freedom from the fear that depresses the heart and torments the nerves—these things are absolutely essential to the normal growth of a child.

Yet millions of children have been made miserable, timid and incompetent by the foolish threats and frightenings of grown-up idiots.

Stories of ghosts, of "black men," all the inventions of idle, foolish minds, have terrified children for ages.

That kind of nonsense ought to stop. Men and women who haven't brains enough to think for themselves should at least let other people think for them.

Men that would be very much offended if anybody kicked a young dog, saying "Don't break that dog's spirit," will go out five minutes afterward and give to a growing child a beating that will break the CHILD'S spirit and fill the child with hatred for its parents, HATRED PERFECTLY JUSTIFIED.

Make your children courageous. Give them confidence in themselves. Try to keep alive the spark of courage with which they are born.

Remember that every fault in a child comes FROM ITS FATHER OR MOTHER, OR BOTH. What you put into the child's blood and brain you cannot take out with a stick. You may take it out with kindness, with patient teaching and example.

The man that beats a child is beating, not a bad boy, BUT THE SON OF A FOOLISH BRUTE. The man that diminishes his child's courage is ruining that child's chance in life.

If you see defects in your child and you feel that you must beat something, BEAT YOURSELF OR GET SOMEBODY ELSE TO GIVE YOU A BEATING. You are the one that deserves beating, for YOU made the child.

Try to undo what you have done badly with kindness. You can't do it with blows or frightenings.

When a Meteor Falls Now We Treat It as a METEOR, Not as a Miracle

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

The other day there came from El Paso, Texas, a story of a huge meteor that burst as it fell, and started a forest fire with its red-hot fragments.

That bursting, brilliant, red-hot mass of metal was only one of millions of meteors that strike our earth every year. Most of these, rendered red hot by striking the atmosphere at frightful speed, melt and fall to the earth in dust. The bottom of the ocean is covered with such dust.

Occasionally, an extraordinarily large meteor, or one that resists heat unusually, comes all the way through our atmosphere and strikes the earth. Perhaps one in a million of the meteors that come to this earth strike the earth's surface violently. The other nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine fall gently, and no one knows they have come.

The interesting thing about this Texas meteor is this:

When it exploded, and the scattering fragments set fire to the dry grass and leaves, THE INHABITANTS SIMPLY SET TO WORK TO PUT OUT THE FIRE.

An occasional superstitious individual thought there was something miraculous in the happening. But the bulk of the population took the matter sanely.

In old ignorant days such an event would have caused ninety-nine out of every hundred to believe in the approaching end of the world. To-day the meteor and the fire frighten no normal individual—the world improves and gets wiser.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

PEOPLE NEED LEADERSHIP

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I enjoyed the Uncle Sam cartoon a few days ago very much. He looked invincible with fair Columbia on one side and a stalwart American son on the other. A true American trinity. I wish every woman in the land could see it and be inspired by its prophetic forecast.

Also it is matter for congratulation that Mr. Hearst gives us now and then a signed article. The people need his wise leadership. They have been betrayed so often that many are disconcerted.

MARY IVES TODD.

WARNING TO AMERICAN TOURISTS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

This is the season when many Americans go abroad, and I think a word of warning would be the means of saving them much trouble. Foreign swindlers, especially in Venice and other Italian cities, are waiting for the free-spending Americans and not a week passes but many of them are fleeced.

It has long been known that American tourists are not safe in Italy, but the attractions are so great that one takes the risk of life and property. In the last three weeks no less than ten Americans have been robbed, their pockets picked and their trunks broken open. They have been short-changed, overcharged, arrested, or something equally unpleasant has happened. Our consuls are unable to do anything, as the laws are so peculiar, and the victim in many cases, through modesty, do not make a report. The guides, merchants, pickpockets, beggars, and even officials, are all alike.

In Venice, I would advise Americans to go to only the best hotels and boarding houses, and even then they should have trunks with heavy locks. Never carry valuables and don't ever leave any money in your trunks.

Avoid gondola rides as a pestilence. These are even worse than hack rides in America. Avoid law suits. You are beaten before you start. Always count money before and after receiving it. Every American or English-speaking tourist is robbed. Laws should be enacted to protect Americans abroad, and, until this is done, it is safer for them to remain at home.

"HEARST NEEDED IN THE COUNCILS OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I have been a Democrat as far back as my memory will carry me—1876—the memorable Tilden campaign. Since that time there have come and gone many great Democrats. There are some to-day, and among them I always have classed Mr. William Randolph Hearst.

I take little stock in these stories that Mr. Hearst is not wanted in the councils of his party. The rank and file DO want him and the people NEED him.

His services are needed to both, of course. There are a few party politicians, calling themselves Democrats, who hold up their hands in holy horror when they hear Mr. Hearst's name.

But there's a reason. It is at this case Mr. Hearst has aimed his shafts, and some of the recent "reformations" show to what extent he has operated for "the good of the service."

The Democratic party to-day enjoys better prospects for success than it has since 1892. Recent results in New England indicate a Democratic walkover this year.

For this there also is a reason, and I may say several reasons—but the one, paramount to my mind, which is brought about this universal change of sentiment can be traced back to the national campaign in 1908.

When Mr. Hearst by his mass of letters and other indisputable facts unmasked the conditions he gave the people of the nation an opportunity again to come into their own. This was the beginning of the regeneration of the Democratic party.

The mills grind slowly, but they are grinding surely. Mr. Hearst's work is bearing fruit. What is causing the Democratic party's way is due to Mr. Hearst's efforts. Then why ask, "Does the Democratic party need Mr. Hearst?"

Can a locomotive without steam pull a train?

MOB MADNESS AND THE RAVING OVER ROOSEVELT

Written for the Boston Americans

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE cyclone that has developed around Mr. Roosevelt is a phenomenon suited to interest not only those who have an eye for the spectacular, but still more seriously those who make a study of the anomalies and eccentricities of our common human nature.

We have no purpose of speaking in derogatory terms of our ex-President. He is one of the most sane and normal personalities in the entire combination.

Perhaps, if the present cataclysm of sentiment were to be indefinitely continued, he might also be carried away by his enthusiasm for himself and be rent by the very tornado he has precipitated. But up to the present time he appears to have preserved his wits and a very liberal supply of them.

The reasons that the American people have for admiring him are neither few nor difficult to state, were there occasion for stating them. But there is a point where wholesome and rational admiration forgets its brains and becomes the victim of its own vertigo. And that is the present situation among our people—a situation which, by a kind of contagion, has extended itself across the Atlantic and down among the African pagans.

Although we are of Teutonic origin, we yet have a very strong tendency toward Celtic effervescence. Individually, we succeed pretty well in preserving our equanimity; but when a considerable number of us think the same thing, and are under the influence of the same feeling, we intensify each other, and all become lifted out of the region of sanity into that of irresponsible delirium. And what began as a crowd ends as a mob.

In a Condition of Absolute Lunacy

What is going on now, with regard to Mr. Roosevelt, is the repetition, only on a very much larger scale, of what occurred on the occasion of the return of Admiral Dewey from Manila. Our entire population continued for a number of days in a condition of absolute lunacy.

Without at all disparaging the victory which Mr. Dewey had gained, it is nevertheless a fact that it so upset the mental equilibrium of us all, and so paralyzed that department of our being where our rational processes are conducted, that the reason why no one pronounced us insane was because there was no one left that was sane enough himself to be qualified to adjudge us to the asylum.

We filled our streets with hasty architecture, that was cheap but gaudy, and it was only the general prevalence of theistic convictions that prevented the erection of altars in his worship. When, after a few days, there came a revulsion of feeling, we tore down the plaster shrines with the same automatic agility with which we had put them up.

As a people we are not often silly, but we are liable to be. We are of Germanic extraction, but rather Frenchy in our temperament—at least when we become hypnotized by some one idea that a thousand, or a hundred thousand people feel alike about, and feel rather strongly about. Then we spur on each other, and our unanimity flames up into a grand combustion, as it is doing now.

Possessed of the Mob Spirit

Each enkindles his neighbor and the congregated sparks blaze across the community, or the country, like a great prairie fire.

What occurred in the Dewey episode is occurring now, only on a national and international scale. Just as luny now as then, only with a larger number of lunatics. There is great difference between the psychology of an individual and the psychology of a crowd.

Individually, we can admire a man without becoming delirious; but let some millions be possessed with the same sentiment and the result is a conflagration of admiration that burns up the rational faculty, or at least puts it out of commission.

The spirit, that we are at present possessed of is the mob-spirit. Between such spirit and the spirit of the individual components of the mob, there is a wide difference. A crowd of people may be individually cowardly, but dare any danger when congregated together. Individually they may be just, but as a mob lawless and heartless.

The French revolutionists of '93 became courteous gentlemen when the revolution was over. So, taken man by man, we are able to hold our feelings, whether of admiration or otherwise, under intelligent restraint, but become immediately the prey of those feelings when acted upon by the stimulus and aggravation of others who are similarly minded.

Every Fire Must Burn Itself Out

As regards most things, we Americans are sane; but as regards Roosevelt we are just demented. The occasion of Mr. Roosevelt's arrival in New York will be one in which the insanes will run still-mad. We shall laugh at ourselves, afterward, just as we now make merry over the Dewey fiasco. It will be an interesting occasion, as showing how close to each other sense and folly can lie inside this nature of ours.

The sterling sense of the multitude will however reassert itself in due time; for there is no fire but eventually burns itself out, and no Summer but culminates in a frost.

He Writes About Some of Ma's Friends

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I AM glad you are going to be hoam tonite, sed Ma to Pa, because us girls is going to have our class in Retorik & Declamashun.

If I had known that, sed Pa, I wud have stayed up on Washington St., were I was having a swell game of bottel pool. In fack, sed Pa, I think I will be gitting back up there.

But just as Pa was going out of the door the ladies all came in. Ma introduced them all to Pa, & Pa had to shake hands with them.

Then the Retorik class beegan, & Pa had to set cuver in the corner neer me, & listen to all the peeces that they spoak. One (1) of the ladies got up, & this is what she recited:

I've wandered to the village, Tom, & sat beneeth the tree
Upon the palm oil playing ground that shattered you & me.
But few was left to greet me, Tom, and none was left to know
That I had played within that glade, jest twenty years ago.

All of the ladies, Ma & the rest, beegan to clap loud & hard. Then Pa got up & sed:

I wandered to the butcher shop to git a pound of beef,
The price was tuff to git for it was way beyond beeteef.
It filled my eyes with salty teers & choked my hart with woe
To think that beef's much higher now than forty yeers ago.

Then a funny looking little old maid got up & started to recite a poem, this is the way it went:

I am saddest wen I sing, sing, sing.
For time is on the wing, wing, wing.

Since the neighbors lynched dear dad
I am neerly always sad.

But I'm saddest wen I sing, sing, sing.

Then a other lady got up & sed Deer frends, nothing is so suitabel for publick resitashuns as ballads. Ballads is always moar attrieg than the lighter forms of verse, such as Wen I Tramped Through the Mud With Blanche. You see, what we need is to go back over the old feelds, to read & recite the immortal ballads of such men as Mister Mc' Auly, wich rote the Lays of Anshunt Rome.

Then from the Roman legions
Arose a mighty swell;
Herminius comes, Herminius,
Wich kept the bridge so well.

That is from a poem called the Battel of Lake Regilus, sed the lady to Ma & Ma's frends. It is full of manly buty & power.

& I know one, sed a other lady, it is called Thanytopsy, & this is the way it finishes:

So like that wen the final summons cums
To join the in-numerable caravan wich moves
On to the silent realms of Deth,
Go not like a longshoreman scourged to his fat,
But go as one (1) wich wraps the drapery of his couch about him & lies down to pleasant dreams.

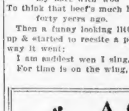
By the way, girls, sed Pa, did you ever hear the poem wich goes like this:

There was a young lady from Tottenham
Whose manners, well, she had forgotten 'em.
She dineg at McCue's
& took off her shoes
Beekawse she was feeling too hot in 'em.

Then all the ladies went hoam, & Pa was glad.

A Guide to Sports

By WEX JONES



CRICKET—This is a jolly game for two sides, but three days to play and a simple adding machine upon which to keep the score. The approved plan is to start the game at 10 o'clock in the morning. At noon two hours are taken for luncheon and a bit of a nap. Play is resumed at 3 o'clock and continues until 4, when an hour is taken for tea. Half an hour or so after tea finishes out the day. By the pleasant device of letting most bits of any length count for four runs the players in the field are saved the beastly exertion of having to chase after the ball, and by the ingenious device of changing pieces after each over they are kept from actually going to sleep on the grass. At the end of the three days Notts has scored 1,789 runs and Hants 1,672, with three wickets to fall. The adding machine, the table of equations and an expert necountant are then brought into action and the winning side is announced in special editions of the evening papers published two days later.

ROOTING—The most popular form of athletics among the majority of men is rooting. A university plays football by having eleven men on the field and several thousand on the bleachers yelling "Yio to tip!" Hundreds of thousands indulge in Summer athletics by howling "Kill the umpire!" "Oh, you bonehead!" and other martial cries. The advantages of this course are obvious. A young man gets by it a splendid athletic training without any of the struggles and exertions that make the game serious. Also it is easy to be Spartan and game when seating in a ringside seat and encouraging one fighter to slam the other "in the mush."
